STASSEN CHARGES "RILE" PAULEY

Camps Of GOP Candidates Hail 'Ike's' Takeout

Eisenhower Would Refuse Nomination

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said flatly today that he "could not accept nomination to high political office," and thereby eased the anxieties of politicians who had feared the popular "Ike" might upset 1948's presidential applecart.

Eisenhower ended more than a year of speculation, marked by what veteran political observers regarded as an amazing showing of popularity among the people, by telling his backers for the Republican presidential nomination that he is not available.

He said "necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil powers will be best sustained" if lifelong professional soldiers like himself do not seek high political office.

Nothing in the international or domestic situation, he added, especially qualifies for the presidency a man "whose adult years have been spent in the country's military forces. At least this is true in my case."

Candidates' Camps Jubilant

Some politicians thought this might apply to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who is being boomed in Wisconsin and other states for the GOP presidential nomination. But Eisenhower said he was speaking only of himself.

The 57-year-old retiring Army Chief of Staff, who will become president of Columbia University June 7, made his flat declaration in a letter to a New Hampshire supporter, Leonard V. Finder, publisher of the Manchester Evening Leader. A slate of delegates pledged to the General had been entered in the March 9 GOP primaries there.

The letter was gleefully received in the camps of the avowed Republican candidates. They had made no secret of the fact that the General's past statements—intermittent since a Miami interview January 7, 1947—had fallen short of an equivocal takeout and made him a real threat in event of a convention deadlock.

Although a personal letter, it was made public generally, the Army Press Division said, because Eisen-

Eisenhower Led In Two Surveys

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was leading in presidential polls by the Fortune and Gallup organizations when he announced today his decision "to remove myself completely from the political scene."

The Fortune survey of public opinion reported today that of six possible Republican opponents for President Truman, Eisenhower was the only one favored over the incumbent.

The American Institute of Public Opinion reported Wednesday that in a three-way race between the President, Eisenhower and Henry A. Wallace, its nationwide poll showed 47 per cent for Eisenhower, 40 per cent for President Truman, and six per cent for Wallace.

Princess Anne Joins Mihai In Switzerland

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 23—(AP)—Princess Anne, of Bourbon-Parma, came to Switzerland today and met former King Mihai, of Romania. Her blonde hair blowing, she rushed into his arms and kissed him.

The 24-year-old Danish Princess came from Luxembourg, where she interrupted her journey two weeks ago to see the former King almost immediately after his abdication of Dec. 30 Mihai's aides said at the time they did not think an immediate marriage was opportune.

Interviewed as he emerged from his hotel, Mihai said there would be no immediate formal announcement of an engagement, but Anne's father, Prince Rene, said at St. Moritz, "they're engaged all right."

Churchill's Plea For Showdown With Reds Indirectly Challenged By Attlee; U.S. Backs Union Move

Western European Initiative Stressed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Britain's plan to organize a Western European bloc was endorsed by the United States today as a means or reinforcing "the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

While thus giving its support to the undertaking announced yesterday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, the State Department carefully emphasized "European initiative" in forming the organization.

It apparently sought thereby both to encourage European leadership in forging ahead with the project and to counter possible Soviet charges that the whole thing is an American plot to dominate Europe.

U. S. Enters France Dispute

At the same time the State Department took a hand in the controversy between Britain and France over the French plan to revalue the franc.

Undersecretary Robert Lovett took time out of a Cabinet meeting for a brief, unscheduled conference at the White House with Lord Inverchapel, the British ambassador.

Michael McDermott, State Department press officer, said tonight they touched briefly on Bevin's speech but reported that "matters before the International Monetary Fund" were the chief topic.

This obviously meant that they talked about the franc revaluation dispute, which has been the only matter before the fund for the past five days.

Apparently the meeting was urgent for Inverchapel arranged to see the Undersecretary at the White House an hour before a scheduled 11:30 a. m. (EST) appointment with him at the State Department.

Parallel To Marshall Plan

Of Bevin's western bloc proposal the State Department said in part: "As in the case of the recovery program, the United States heartily welcomes European initiative in this respect and any proposal looking to a closer material and spiritual link between the Western European nations will serve to reinforce the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

The British plan appeared to be a political parallel to the Marshall plan for European recovery, which has stressed the need for European countries to organize into an economic unit.

IMPROVING — Actress Kay Francis (above), who became seriously ill yesterday and later admitted taking an overdose of sleeping pills, is reported improving.

Actress Admits Taking Too Many Sleeping Pills

Kay Francis' Stage Manager Released

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23 (AP)—Kay Francis, star of the stage play "State Of The Union," became seriously ill from an overdose of sleeping pills today and police detained her stage manager for five hours while they investigated.

Howard Graham, 37, the stage manager, was released after the 43-year-old actress regained consciousness and confirmed Graham's story of what caused her illness. He had been booked for "investigation of assault to kill."

Legs Burned On Radiator

Police took Graham into custody at White Cross Hospital, to which Miss Francis was removed about 7 a. m., when they found she had second degree burns on her legs.

Graham had reported that he called to her hotel room about 6:30 a. m., that she fainted and she burned her legs on a radiator when he took her to a window in an effort to revive her.

Jay S. Teele, assistant chief of detectives, announced Graham's release at 3:15 p. m. (EST) and said:

"The detectives talked to her and she said she had been nervous and couldn't sleep. She had been taking these pills so she took more than she thought she was taking."

Earlier, William Blair, company manager of the production playing here, had described Graham's detention as a "ridiculous mistake."

Condition Improves

Miss Francis, who entered the movies in 1930 and has appeared in more than 50 films, remained in serious condition. After her stomach had been emptied with a stomach pump, her condition was reported as improved.

Dr. Maurice B. Rusoff, her physician, reported, "Her condition is serious but not critical."

Graham related he left Miss Francis about 2:30 a. m. and was summoned by her about 6:30 a. m.

"I went to her room and knocked and she answered," he said. "She was clad in a blue robe. While I was talking with her she fainted."

Graham tried to revive her and then summoned a physician.

Moscow Rebuffs U.N. Korea Group

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Russia today officially rebuffed the first attempt by the United Nations Assembly's Korean Independence Commission to enter the Soviet zone in Northern Korea.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, notified the United Nations by letter that Russia maintained her "negative attitude" toward the commission. He refused to amplify this statement but the United Nations and delegates accepted it as a rejection of the commission bid.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate here, told newsmen that the commission now in Seoul "ought to go ahead and organize the (United States-occupied) southern zone." Austin said, however, this was only his personal view.

On a variety of other subjects under United Nations consideration: India denied Pakistan charges as "deliberate distortion" of the truth in their inter-dominion feud before the Security Council; the Subcommission on Freedom of Information and of the Press argued again about censorship measures without result, and the Jewish Agency for Palestine called on the United Nations to set up a Jewish militia of 30,000 to 35,000 in Palestine.

The Security Council failed again today to agree on a governor for the Free Territory of Trieste after being officially advised that attempts between Italy and Yugoslavia for a direct solution had broken down.

Labor And Management Groups Back ERP Aims

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers and the Committee for Economic Development, a business men's organization, joined today in urging that the European recovery program be freed from State Department control.

They also aligned themselves with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in pledging full support to the purposes of the program—a circumstance that Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called "very significant."

Labor-management agreement on the "fundamental objectives" of large-scale aid to Europe, Vandenberg commented, "is a coincidence that ought to be underscored."

Support of the recovery program also was reaffirmed by the CIO Executive Board, which ended a two-day meeting. The board acted despite objections by West Coast CIO Leader Harry Bridges.

"Danger" In Delay, Commons Is Told

LONDON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Winston Churchill today urged the "western democracies" to unite and "bring matters to a head" at once with the Soviet government before the Russians develop an atomic bomb, possibly in a year or two.

There is "very real danger" in delay, he warned.

Churchill voiced full Conservative support of a proposal for a Western European union announced yesterday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, but Prime Minister Attlee said Britain's Labor government would move carefully in consolidating a bloc to halt Communist expansion.

Winding up a grave, two-day foreign policy debate in the House of Commons, Attlee indirectly challenged Churchill's plea for a speedy East-West diplomatic showdown.

Attlee Would Build Up Support

The Prime Minister said Britain planned "to get the idea (Western European unity) formulated and propagated and then, through conversations, to build up support for it, rather than have some kind of dramatic gathering with a concrete plan in which all the difficulties would come out."

Churchill urged action now. He said that by taking the initiative in seeking a settlement with Russia the western nations would be following a course that offered the "best chance of preventing war."

Even then, he continued, there would be no guarantee that peace would be maintained, but if war came "we would have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

Bevin announced yesterday that the "time is ripe for the consolidation of Western Europe" and revealed that Britain and France already had invited Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to join in treaties designed to halt what he called the "tremendous expansion" of Russia and Communist attacks on the Marshall plan.

Europe's Division Proclaimed

The Foreign Secretary's announcement was proclaimed in newspapers and many government chancellories all over Europe as formally marking the division of Europe into East and West, but Attlee made it appear that Britain is not rushing into any hastily-contrived anti-Soviet federation of Western Europe.

He indicated there was no thought at the present time of joining in a customs union with France or the Benelux (Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg) nations.

Attlee also mentioned only the "political and economic integration" of Western Europe — although French officials yesterday said in Paris that military treaties with the Benelux countries were being sought as well.

Attlee attacked Communism, just as Bevin and Churchill had done before him, and served notice on Prime Minister Stalin to "give up the idea that Britain is going to turn Communist."

Senate Votes To Extend Grain-Saving Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House legislation extending to February 29 the Agriculture Department's authority to allocate grains to distillers.

The anti-inflation law enacted last month contained a provision renewing the President's wartime power to restrict the use of grain for whisky making, but set January 31 as expiration date. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson requested extension of the authority to aid in carrying out the administration's campaign to conserve grain for food at home and abroad.

Sen. Flanders (R-Vt), sponsor of the extension bill, termed it a stopgap measure. But he said its passage would permit a special Senate Banking Subcommittee which he heads, to conduct hearings later on a bill by Sens. Aiken (R-Vt) and Kilgore (D-WVa) to provide for a longer term extension.

KILLED BY JAPS—Testimony of Jiro Nikahara, Hawaiian-born Japanese and a member of a Japanese submarine crew, at the Tokyo war crimes trial yesterday revealed how Mrs. Verna Gordon Brittain (right), native of San Francisco, was shot to death along with other survivors of the torpedoing of a Dutch ship after being taken aboard the sub in 1944. The testimony ended a four-year search. Her husband, Laurie Brittain, is at the left.

House Democrats Plan Anti-Knutson Bill Conference

Leaders Determined To Unite Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Democratic leaders today called a mass meeting for January 28 of all their House members, determined to consolidate opposition to the Republican-backed bill proposing a $6,300,000,000 tax cut.

"We are going to discuss the Knutson bill," said Rep. Rayburn, of Texas, the Democratic leader. "We are just going to show how nefarious, dishonest and contemptible the character of the Knutson bill is."

The Democratic meeting will be held in the House chamber the day before the body begins debating the tax-cutting measure introduced by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee. A House vote is set for February 2.

Upset Of Veto Predicted

Rayburn pointed out to reporters that Secretary of the Treasury Snyder had said the proposed tax cut would put the Treasury about $2,100,000,000 in the red in fiscal 1949.

Rayburn announced the meeting after both Speaker Martin (R-Mass) and Knutson had predicted that an expected presidential veto of the Republican bill will be overriden.

A two-thirds vote of both House and Senate is necessary to overturn a presidential objection, and this cannot be obtained by the Republicans without substantial support from Democrats.

There is considerable speculation on Capitol Hill that the Knutson bill will pass the House "as is" and then the size of the cut will be reduced to around $4,000,000,000 by the Senate, in an effort to pick up Democratic votes.

Budget Committee Organized

As the showdown approached, Republicans organized the 102-member House-Senate Budget Committee to begin whittling down Mr. Truman's $39,700,000,000 budget for fiscal 1949. Top Republicans are reported to be aiming at a federal spending ceiling at least $3,000,000,000 less than the amount the President requested.

Taking a strong stand against the Republican tax measure, Rayburn declared:

"The prudent man pays his debts while he has money. While this prosperity is going on, without hurting anyone, we could reduce the nation's debt by a substantial amount. x x x."

Beauty Contest At Ft. Lewis Has Sarge Wondering

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Jan. 23 (AP)—As veteran top sergeants raised an eyebrow and wondered what the postwar Army is coming to, officials announced today a "body beautiful" contest for the selection next month of a "Mr. Fort Lewis."

The winner of the gym-sponsored contest will be chosen for overall physical excellence and symmetry, not for the biggest chest or bulging muscles. At his coronation by nurse or WAC, he will have a retinue of individual winners in best-of-chest and other divisions.

Winter Envelops Most Of Country

[By The Associated Press]

Winter enveloped almost the entire country in its benumbing embrace Friday, driving the mercury below zero in the East, Midwest and the Rockies and bringing a forecast for freezing temperatures as far south as Northern Florida and the Gulf States.

Temperatures dropped fast in the Southeast and zero weather—coldest since 1940—was forecast from parts of Alabama and Georgia. Zero weather also was predicted for parts of Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky.

Los Angeles experienced a chilly Saturday morning minimum of 43, but there was no new frost threat to the California citrus belt.

The fast-spreading cold air mass, which is coming down from Canada, brought the nation's lowest reading of 45 degrees below zero to Pokesama Dam on the Mississippi River near Grand Rapids, Minn.

The severe cold also extended to the Middle Atlantic States and New England, with prospects temperatures would drop lower on Saturday. A Saturday morning minimum of four below zero was forecast for Pittsburgh.

For much of the Midwest, the lowest temperatures in the current cold wave were expected Saturday morning. However, some moderation was expected to start in the Western Dakotas and spread eastward over the weekend.

Missing College Girl's Father Is Seriously Ill

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—A new appeal was issued to police today to press the search for 13-year-old Ann Lorenzo, who disappeared from Hood College in Frederick, Md., January 6, because her father is seriously ill.

Mrs. Peter Lorenzo said "we hold nothing against her" and "all will be forgiven" if the girl has married.

Ann disappeared from the school the morning after returning from Newton, where she spent the Christmas holidays. On the afternoon of January 6 she applied for a marriage license in Elkton, Md.

She failed to return to Elkton at the expiration of the 47-hour waiting period required before the permit could be issued.

Police believe that Ann and Fred Stepongzi, Newton, named on the application, may have gotten married in another state and headed for California.

Newsprint Bill Offered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Sen. Pepper (D-Fla.) today introduced a bill to continue the duty-free import of newsprint less than 15 inches wide for two additional years.

Oil From Coal Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The government probably will start producing oil from coal by the middle of next summer, James Boyd, director of the Bureau of Mines, said today.

American Woman Died Heroically On Jap Sub Deck

War Crime Witness Clears Up Mystery

TOKYO, Jan. 23—(AP)—An American woman dancer died heroically on the deck of a Japanese submarine, scorning a blindfold and calling goodbye in Japanese to her executioners, a surprise witness at the war crimes trial related today, ending a search of nearly four years for the missing woman.

The woman was Mrs. Verna Gordon Brittain, 33, a native of San Francisco and wife of Laurie Brittain, British manager of the Nestle Food Company, in Penang.

The witness was Jiro Nakahara, 28, Hawaiian-born Japanese who said he was a crew member of the submarine and acted as interpreter for Mrs. Brittain.

Surprise Witness

Nakahara was brought in as a surprise witness by the prosecution in the trial of Hideki Tojo and 24 other former leaders of Japan. His testimony was in rebuttal to the denial of Adm. Shigetaro Shimada, onetime chief of the naval staff, that he ordered execution of survivors of torpedoings.

Uakahara said Mrs. Brittain was en route to join her husband in Calcutta when the Dutch ship Tjsalak was torpedoed in the Indian Ocean in March, 1944.

He said she and others were taken inside the submarine, where the commander said he had orders to execute all except persons "of importance" wanted for questioning.

Told Crew "Sayonara"

"The woman told me she was a Red Cross worker on her way to India," he related.

"The senior officer said to me in Japanese that she would have to be shot. I did not tell her, but I think she knew what was going to happen. It was then night time.

"I could not look her in the face. She told me she knew what was going to happen.

"The senior officer told me to ask her if she wanted to be blindfolded and her hands tied. She said she did not.

"Just before she left, she said 'Sayonara'—Japanese for goodbye. It was addressed to all the crew."

Evacuation Considered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The State Department probably will order the wives and children of American diplomats home from Palestaine because of the fighting there between Jews and Arabs.

Department Press Officer Michael McDermott told a news conference today that the wives and children "probably will be brought out."

Grain Trading Probe Session Ends In Uproar

Army Dept. Official Shouts "Poppycock"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A Senate investigation of commodity speculation recessed tonight in an uproar during which Edwin W. Pauley shouted that the charge he used "inside information" in trading on the grain markets was "a bunch of poppycock."

Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich) cut off Pauley's attempted statement before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee after Harold E. Stassen had testified that Pauley used such "inside information" in market operations.

Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) shouted that he resented Pauley's "insinuations," inasmuch as Democratic members, he complained, had used up most of the time in hostile questioning of Stassen. Stassen is a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination and Pauley, former treasurer of the Democratic committee, is a special assistant to the Secretary of the Army.

"I have sat here all day," Pauley shouted as Stassen concluded replying to written questions put to him at Pauley's request, "and I have never seen or heard of such a bunch of poppycock."

Ferguson told Pauley to be quiet, adding that the latter will have a chance to testify before the committee tomorrow in reply to Stassen's charges.

Pauley Subsides

Pauley subsided.

Before getting around to Pauley's written questions, Stassen had testified that about 11 administration "insiders," including five former government officials, made $5,000,000 in profits in a "pattern of operations" similiar to Pauley's.

This raised by $1,000,000 Stassen's estimate of January 9 of the profits he laid to "insiders" since the war.

Taking up the first of 21 questions submitted by Pauley, who is resigning as assistant to the Secretary of the Army, Stassen said Pauley, as a war reparations commissioner, participated in government decisions on commodity questions.

"Do you accuse Pauley of trading on the basis of inside information?" Ferguson read from the list of Pauley's questions.

"I do," Stassen replied quietly as Pauley, sitting nearby, frowned.

"If answer to question No. 1 is 'yes', what specific items of inside information did Pauley trade on? When did he get them?" Ferguson continued.

"Continuously as he served as special (reparations) ambassador of the United States, as he served as assistant to the Secretary of the Army and as he associated with government officials," Stassen replied, adding:

"He couldn't carry on his duties officially without having information that he could use privately for profiteering in food," Stassen declared.

Sen. Green Protests

Sen. Green (D-RI) protested that Stassen had no proof that Pauley used his knowledge in trading.

Idea Of Third Party Is Condemned By CIO-PAC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — The CIO's Political Action Committee lined up with opponents of a third party today, and promptly opened a drive for a minimum of $1-a-head from 6,000,000 CIO members to build a block, ward and precinct organization.

The PAC's executive board voted 7 to 2 for a resolution condemning the third party idea, although without mentioning the name of Henry A. Wallace.

"We know that an untapped reservoir of votes rests within the ranks of our own movement which is greater than the vote of any third party," the PAC board said in a formal statement ending its session.

The statement was opposed by Albert J. Fitzgerald, president, and Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer, of the United Electrical Workers, one of the CIO's "Big Three" unions, claiming 600,000 members.

Bavarian General Strike Draws To Orderly Close

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 23 (AP)—A paralyzing 24-hour strike by 1,000,000 Bavarians drew to an orderly close tonight and prompted swift action by two German governmental agencies to stamp out black marketing and food hoarding and thus boost food rations.

The Economic Council of the British and American zones passed the most severe law of its half-year existance, compelling all farmers and food handlers to report their complete stocks under threat of heavy punishment.

The Bavarian state government—chief target of the strike — announced it will wage a drive against black marketeers and food hoarders and enlist trade unions and farmers' associations in a program to divert food from illegal channels into a common rationing pool.

The strike was marked by angry shouts against "well-fed Americans." Trade union leaders said the Bavarian government's announcement was aimed at correcting the conditions which had produced the strike.

Under the new law of the bizonal council food not reported can be confiscated. Fines up to $3,000 can be levied for false reports, and in aggravated cases a farmer can be punished by having his farm placed under operation by a state trustee.

Only one council member, its lone Communist delegate, opposed the measure.

(In Washington, Gen. Lucious D. Clay, American military governor, said the Army plans to raise the basic German food ration from 1,550 calories a day to 1,800 by July 1. He said food collections from German farmers were about 80 per cent of the goal.)

The widespread walkout in 26 major cities and scores of towns in the American zone state crippled communications, industry and most trade, and was attended by mass demonstrations at several places. Communists, who supported the strike, were prominent in the demonstrations with their red banners.

Amishman Is Sentenced To Penal Farm For Chaining His Daughter

GOSHEN, Ind., Jan. 23 (AP)—Samuel Hochstettler, 75-year-old, white-bearded leader of a rural Amish church, was sentenced today to six months on the state penal farm for keeping his 41-year-old daughter, Lucy, roped and chained for 10 years because she refused to join the strict religious sect.

Later three Goshen physicians examined the daughter, and Dr. H. E. Vander Bogart, spokesman, said they agreed she was insane and should be confined to an institution.

Her father told Circuit Judge Aldo J. Simpson at his arraignment that he had confined Lucy to her bed for seven years by rope and for the past three years by chains.

Sheriff Luther Yoder said the woman's wrists bore chain marks when he found her bound to her bed in a small, dimly-lighted room on the Hochstettler farm yesterday. He said one wrist was bleeding.

The stern church elder pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge today, and Judge Simpson remonstrated:

"A man in your position and of your intelligence should know better than commit such an inhuman act."

"Her mind had gone bad," Hochsettler replied. "It was the only way we knew how to manage her."

Miss Hochstettler was taken to the nearby home of a sister. Their mother died in November, and Lucy had been living alone with her father.

Runaway Piano Prodigy Defends Whirl Of Night Life With Sailor

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Runaway Jacqueline (Jackie) Horner spiritedly defended in Superior Court today her gay whirl of San Francisco night life with a 19-year-old sailor.

The youthful Hollywood piano prodigy, who left home January 13 because of what she said was too much practice and "not enough fun," testified in behalf of Seaman Wallace Wells, 19, Hood River, Ore., charged with contributing to delinquency of a minor.

Judge I. L. Harris refused to hold the young seaman to Superior Court and referred both cases to juvenile authorities.

"He never touched me," the girl told Judge Harris.

"I didn't think we were doing anything wrong and we didn't do anything wrong."

Hunted across the nation for eight days, Jackie was found in a hotel room with Wells by police inspectors Wednesday morning.

After the hearing, Wells was committed into custody of his commanding officer, Lt. Comdr. J. L. Eubanks, of the navy tanker Cimarron, to which Wells is attached.

Jackie's other companion, Gloria Jean Costello, a night club photographer also known as Gloria Jean Miles and Jean Armstrong, will be given a preliminary hearing on a like charge tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the possibility that Jackie may be "protecting" some one in her whirl at night spots here was voiced by Paul Hill, Los Angeles attorney representing Jackie's mother, Mrs. Clara Horner. He said he felt there might be a potential "white slave" element in the case.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was leading in presidential polls by the Fortune and Gallup organizations when he announced today his decision "to remove myself completely from the political scene."

The Fortune survey of public opinion reported today that of six possible Republican opponents for President Truman, Eisenhower was the only one favored over the incumbent.

Churchill's Plea For Showdown With Reds Indirectly Challenged By Attlee; U.S. Backs Union Move

Western European Initiative Stressed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Britain's plan to organize a Western European bloc was endorsed by the United States today as a means or reinforcing "the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

While thus giving its support to the undertaking announced yesterday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, the State Department carefully emphasized "European initiative" in forming the organization.

It apparently sought thereby both to encourage European leadership in forging ahead with the project and to counter possible Soviet charges that the whole thing is an American plot to dominate Europe.

U. S. Enters France Dispute

At the same time the State Department took a hand in the controversy between Britain and France over the French plan to revalue the franc.

Undersecretary Robert Lovett took time out of a Cabinet meeting for a brief, unscheduled conference at the White House with Lord Inverchapel, the British ambassador.

Michael McDermott, State Department press officer, said tonight they touched briefly on Bevin's speech but reported that "matters before the International Monetary Fund" were the chief topic.

This obviously meant that they talked about the franc revaluation dispute, which has been the only matter before the fund for the past five days.

Apparently the meeting was urgent for Inverchapel arranged to see the Undersecretary at the White House an hour before a scheduled 11:30 a. m. (EST) appointment with him at the State Department.

Parallel To Marshall Plan

Of Bevin's western bloc proposal the State Department said in part: "As in the case of the recovery program, the United States heartily welcomes European initiative in this respect and any proposal looking to a closer material and spiritual link between the Western European nations will serve to reinforce the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

The British plan appeared to be a political parallel to the Marshall plan for European recovery, which has stressed the need for European countries to organize into an economic unit.

IMPROVING — Actress Kay Francis (above), who became seriously ill yesterday and later admitted taking an overdose of sleeping pills, is reported improving.

"Danger" In Delay, Commons Is Told

LONDON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Winston Churchill today urged the "western democracies" to unite and "bring matters to a head" at once with the Soviet government before the Russians develop an atomic bomb, possibly in a year or two.

There is "very real danger" in delay, he warned.

Churchill voiced full Conservative support of a proposal for a Western European union announced yesterday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, but Prime Minister Attlee said Britain's Labor government would move carefully in consolidating a bloc to halt Communist expansion.

Winding up a grave, two-day foreign policy debate in the House of Commons, Attlee indirectly challenged Churchill's plea for a speedy East-West diplomatic showdown.

Attlee Would Build Up Support

The Prime Minister said Britain planned "to get the idea (Western European unity) formulated and propagated and then, through conversations, to build up support for it, rather than have some kind of dramatic gathering with a concrete plan in which all the difficulties would come out."

Churchill urged action now. He said that by taking the initiative in seeking a settlement with Russia the western nations would be following a course that offered the "best chance of preventing war."

Even then, he continued, there would be no guarantee that peace would be maintained, but if war came "we would have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

Bevin announced yesterday that the "time is ripe for the consolidation of Western Europe" and revealed that Britain and France already had invited Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to join in treaties designed to halt what he called the "tremendous expansion" of Russia and Communist attacks on the Marshall plan.

Europe's Division Proclaimed

The Foreign Secretary's announcement was proclaimed in newspapers and many government chancellories all over Europe as formally marking the division of Europe into East and West, but Attlee made it appear that Britain is not rushing into any hastily-contrived anti-Soviet federation of Western Europe.

He indicated there was no thought at the present time of joining in a customs union with France or the Benelux (Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg) nations.

Attlee also mentioned only the "political and economic integration" of Western Europe — although French officials yesterday said in Paris that milltary treaties with the Benelux countries were being sought as well.

Attlee attacked Communism, just as Bevin and Churchill had done before him, and served notice on Prime Minister Stalin to "give up the idea that Britain is going to turn Communist."

Actress Admits Taking Too Many Sleeping Pills

Kay Francis' Stage Manager Released

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23 (AP)—Kay Francis, star of the stage play "State Of The Union," became seriously ill from an overdose of sleeping pills today and police detained her stage manager for five hours while they investigated.

Howard Graham, 37, the stage manager, was released after the 43-year-old actress regained consciousness and confirmed Graham's story of what caused her illness. He had been booked for "investigation of assault to kill."

Legs Burned On Radiator

Police took Graham into custody at White Cross Hospital, to which Miss Francis was removed about 7 a. m., when they found she had second degree burns on her legs.

Graham had reported that he called to her hotel room about 6:30 a. m., that she fainted and she burned her legs on a radiator when he took her to a window in an effort to revive her.

Jay S. Teele, assistant chief of detectives, announced Graham's release at 3:15 p. m. (EST) and said: "The detectives talked to her and she said she had been nervous and couldn't sleep. She had been taking these pills so she took more than she thought she was taking."

Earlier, William Blair, company manager of the production playing here, had described Graham's detention as a "ridiculous mistake."

Condition Improves

Miss Francis, who entered the movies in 1930 and has appeared in more than 50 films, remained in serious condition. After her stomach had been emptied with a stomach pump, her condition was reported as improved.

Dr. Maurice B. Rusoff, her physician, reported, "Her condition is serious but not critical."

Graham related he left Miss Francis about 2:30 a. m. and was summoned by her about 6:30 a. m.

"I went to her room and knocked and she answered," he said. "She was clad in a blue robe. While I was talking with her she fainted."

Moscow Rebuffs U.N. Korea Group

LAKE SUCCESS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Russia today officially rebuffed the first attempt by the United Nations Assembly's Korean Independence Commission to enter the Soviet zone in Northern Korea.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, notified the United Nations by letter that Russia maintained her "negative attitude" toward the commission. He refused to amplify this statement but the United Nations and delegates accepted it as a rejection of the commission bid.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate here, told newsmen that the commission now in Seoul "ought to go ahead and organize the (United States-occupied) southern zone." Austin said, however, this was only his personal view.

On a variety of other subjects under United Nations consideration: India denied Pakistan charges as "deliberate distortion" of the truth in their inter-dominion feud before the Security Council; the Subcommission on Freedom of Information and of the Press argued again about censorship measures without result, and the Jewish Agency for Palestine called on the United Nations to set up a Jewish militia of 30,000 to 35,000 in Palestine.

The Security Council failed again today to agree on a governor for the Free Territory of Trieste after being officially advised that attempts between Italy and Yugoslavia for a direct solution had broken down.

Senate Votes To Extend Grain-Saving Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House legislation extending to February 29 the Agriculture Department's authority to allocate grains to distillers.

The anti-inflation law enacted last month contained a provision renewing the President's wartime power to restrict the use of grain for whisky making, but set January 31 as expiration date. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson requested extension of the authority to aid in carrying out the administration's campaign to conserve grain for food at home and abroad.

Sen. Flanders (R-Vt), sponsor of the extension bill, termed it a stopgap measure. But he said its passage would permit a special Senate Banking Subcommittee which he heads, to conduct hearings later on a bill by Sens. Aiken (R-Vt) and Kilgore (D-WVa) to provide for a longer term extension.

Labor And Management Groups Back ERP Aims

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers and the Committee for Economic Development, a business men's organization, joined today in urging that the European recovery program be freed from State Department control.

They also aligned themselves with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in pledging full support to the purposes of the program—a circumstance that Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called "very significant."

Labor-management agreement on the "fundamental objectives" of large-scale aid to Europe, Vandenberg commented, "is a coincidence that ought to be underscored."

Support of the recovery program also was reaffirmed by the CIO Executive Board, which ended a two-day meeting. The board acted despite objections by West Coast CIO Leader Harry Bridges.

KILLED BY JAPS—Testimony of Jiro Nikahara, Hawaiian-born Japanese and a member of a Japanese submarine crew, at the Tokyo war crimes trial yesterday revealed how Mrs. Verna Gordon Brittain (right), native of San Francisco, was shot to death along with other survivors of the torpedoing of a Dutch ship after being taken aboard the sub in 1944. The testimony ended a four-year search. Her husband, Laurie Brittain, is at the left.

House Democrats Plan Anti-Knutson Bill Conference

Leaders Determined To Unite Opposition

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Democratic leaders today called a mass meeting for January 28 of all their House members, determined to consolidate opposition to the Republican-backed bill proposing a $6,300,000,000 tax cut.

"We are going to discuss the Knutson bill," said Rep. Rayburn, of Texas, the Democratic leader. "We are just going to show how nefarious, dishonest and contemptible the character of the Knutson bill is."

The Democratic meeting will be held in the House chamber the day before the body begins debating the tax-cutting measure introduced by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee. A House vote is set for February 2.

Upset Of Veto Predicted

Rayburn pointed out to reporters that Secretary of the Treasury Snyder had said the proposed tax cut would put the Treasury about $2,100,000,000 in the red in fiscal 1949.

Rayburn announced the meeting after both Speaker Martin (R-Mass) and Knutson had predicted that an expected presidential veto of the Republican bill will be overriden.

A two-thirds vote of both House and Senate is necessary to overturn a presidential objection, and this cannot be obtained by the Republicans without substantial support from Democrats.

There is considerable speculation on Capitol Hill that the Knutson bill will pass the House "as is" and then the size of the cut will be reduced to around $4,000,000,000 by the Senate, in an effort to pick up Democratic votes.

Budget Committee Organized

As the showdown approached, Republicans organized the 102-member House-Senate Budget Committee to begin whittling down Mr. Truman's $39,700,000,000 budget for fiscal 1949. Top Republicans are reported to be aiming at a federal spending ceiling at least $3,000,000,000 less than the amount the President requested.

Taking a strong stand against the Republican tax measure, Rayburn declared:

"The prudent man pays his debts while he has money. While this prosperity is going on, without hurting anyone, we could reduce the nation's debt by a substantial amount. x x x."

Beauty Contest At Ft. Lewis Has Sarge Wondering

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Jan. 23 (AP)—As veteran top sergeants raised an eyebrow and wondered what the postwar Army is coming to, officials announced today a "body beautiful" contest for the selection next month of a "Mr. Fort Lewis."

The winner of the gym-sponsored contest will be chosen for overall physical excellence and symmetry, not for the biggest chest or bulging muscles. At his coronation by nurse or WAC, he will have a retinue of individual winners in best-of-chest and other divisions.

Winter Envelops Most Of Country

[By The Associated Press]

Winter enveloped almost the entire country in its benumbing embrace Friday, driving the mercury below zero in the East, Midwest and the Rockies and bringing a forecast for freezing temperatures as far south as Northern Florida and the Gulf States.

Temperatures dropped fast in the Southeast and zero weather—coldest since 1940—was forecast from parts of Alabama and Georgia. Zero weather also was predicted for parts of Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky.

Los Angeles experienced a chilly Saturday morning minimum of 43, but there was no new frost threat to the California citrus belt.

The fast-spreading cold air mass, which is coming down from Canada, brought the nation's lowest reading of 45 degrees below zero to Pokesama Dam on the Mississippi River near Grand Rapids, Minn.

The severe cold also extended to the Middle Atlantic States and New England, with prospects temperatures would drop lower on Saturday. A Saturday morning minimum of four below zero was forecast for Pittsburgh.

For much of the Midwest, the lowest temperatures in the current cold wave were expected Saturday morning. However, some moderation was expected to start in the Western Dakotas and spread eastward over the weekend.

Missing College Girl's Father Is Seriously Ill

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP)—A new appeal was issued to police today to press the search for 13-year-old Ann Lorenzo, who disappeared from Hood College in Frederick, Md., January 6, because her father is seriously ill.

Mrs. Peter Lorenzo said "we hold nothing against her" and "all will be forgiven" if the girl has married.

Ann disappeared from the school the morning after returning from Newton, where she spent the Christmas holidays. On the afternoon of January 6 she applied for a marriage license in Elkton, Md.

She failed to return to Elkton at the expiration of the 47-hour waiting period required before the permit could be issued.

Police believe that Ann and Fred Stepongzi, Newton, named on the application, may have gotten married in another state and headed for California.

Newsprint Bill Offered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Sen. Pepper (D-Fla.) today introduced a bill to continue the duty-free import of newsprint less than 15 inches wide for two additional years.

Oil From Coal Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The government probably will start producing oil from coal by the middle of next summer, James Boyd, director of the Bureau of Mines, said today.

American Woman Died Heroically On Jap Sub Deck

War Crime Witness Clears Up Mystery

TOKYO, Jan. 23—(AP)—An American woman dancer died heroically on the deck of a Japanese submarine, scorning a blindfold and calling goodbye in Japanese to her executioners, a surprise witness at the war crimes trial related today, ending a search of nearly four years for the missing woman.

The woman was Mrs. Verna Gordon Brittain, 33, a native of San Francisco and wife of Laurie Brittain, British manager of the Nestle Food Company, in Penang.

The witness was Jiro Nakahara, 28, Hawaiian-born Japanese who said he was a crew member of the submarine and acted as interpreter for Mrs. Brittain.

Surprise Witness

Nakahara was brought in as a surprise witness by the prosecution in the trial of Hideki Tojo and 24 other former leaders of Japan. His testimony was in rebuttal to the denial of Adm. Shigetaro Shimada, onetime chief of the naval staff, that he ordered execution of survivors of torpedoings.

Uakahara said Mrs. Brittain was en route to join her husband in Calcutta when the Dutch ship Tjsalak was torpedoed in the Indian Ocean in March, 1944.

He said she and others were taken inside the submarine, where the commander said he had orders to execute all except persons "of importance" wanted for questioning.

Told Crew "Sayonara"

"The woman told me she was a Red Cross worker on her way to India," he related.

"The senior officer said to me in Japanese that she would have to be shot. I did not tell her, but I think she knew what was going to happen. It was then night time.

"I could not look her in the face. She told me she knew what was going to happen.

"The senior officer told me to ask her if she wanted to be blindfolded and her hands tied. She said she did not.

"Just before she left, she said 'Sayonara'—Japanese for goodbye. It was addressed to all the crew."

Evacuation Considered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—The State Department probably will order the wives and children of American diplomats home from Palestaine because of the fighting there between Jews and Arabs.

Department Press Officer Michael McDermott told a news conference today that the wives and children "probably will be brought out."

Grain Trading Probe Session Ends In Uproar

Army Dept. Official Shouts "Poppycock"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A Senate investigation of commodity speculation recessed tonight in an uproar during which Edwin W. Pauley shouted that the charge he used "inside information" in trading on the grain markets was "a bunch of poppycock."

Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich) cut off Pauley's attempted statement before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee after Harold E. Stassen had testified that Pauley used such "inside information" in market operations.

Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) shouted that he resented Pauley's "insinuations," inasmuch as Democratic members, he complained, had used up most of the time in hostile questioning of Stassen. Stassen is a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination and Pauley, former treasurer of the Democratic committee, is a special assistant to the Secretary of the Army.

"I have sat here all day," Pauley shouted as Stassen concluded replying to written questions put to him at Pauley's request, "and I have never seen or heard of such a bunch of poppycock."

Ferguson told Pauley to be quiet, adding that the latter will have a chance to testify before the committee tomorrow in reply to Stassen's charges.

Pauley Subsides

Pauley subsided.

Before getting around to Pauley's written questions, Stassen had testified that about 11 administration "insiders," including five former government officials, made $5,000,000 in profits in a "pattern of operations" similiar to Pauley's.

This raised by $1,000,000 Stassen's estimate of January 9 of the profits he laid to "insiders" since the war.

Taking up the first of 21 questions submitted by Pauley, who is resigning as assistant to the Secretary of the Army, Stassen said Pauley, as a war reparations commissioner, participated in government decisions on commodity questions.

"Do you accuse Pauley of trading on the basis of inside information?" Ferguson read from the list of Pauley's questions.

"I do," Stassen replied quietly as Pauley, sitting nearby, frowned.

"If answer to question No. 1 is 'yes', what specific items of inside information did Pauley trade on? When did he get them?" Ferguson continued.

"Continuously as he served as special (reparations) ambassador of the United States, as he served as assistant to the Secretary of the Army and as he associated with government officials," Stassen replied, adding:

"He couldn't carry on his duties officially without having information that he could use privately for profiteering in food," Stassen declared.

Sen. Green Protests

Sen. Green (D-RI) protested that Stassen had no proof that Pauley used his knowledge in trading.

Idea Of Third Party Is Condemned By CIO-PAC

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — The CIO's Political Action Committee lined up with opponents of a third party today, and promptly opened a drive for a minimum of $1-a-head from 6,000,000 CIO members to build a block, ward and precinct organization.

The PAC's executive board voted 7 to 2 for a resolution condemning the third party idea, although without mentioning the name of Henry A. Wallace.

"We know that an untapped reservoir of votes rests within the ranks of our own movement which is greater than the vote of any third party," the PAC board said in a formal statement ending its session.

The statement was opposed by Albert J. Fitzgerald, president, and Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer, of the United Electrical Workers, one of the CIO's "Big Three" unions, claiming 600,000 members.

Bavarian General Strike Draws To Orderly Close

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 23 (AP)—A paralyzing 24-hour strike by 1,000,000 Bavarians drew to an orderly close tonight and prompted swift action by two German governmental agencies to stamp out black marketing and food hoarding and thus boost food rations.

The Economic Council of the British and American zones passed the most severe law of its half-year existance, compelling all farmers and food handlers to report their complete stocks under threat of heavy punishment.

The Bavarian state government—chief target of the strike — announced it will wage a drive against black marketeers and food hoarders and enlist trade unions and farmers' associations in a program to divert food from illegal channels into a common rationing pool.

The strike was marked by angry shouts against "well-fed Americans." Trade union leaders said the Bavarian government's announcement was aimed at correcting the conditions which had produced the strike.

Under the new law of the bizonal council food not reported can be confiscated. Fines up to $3,000 can be levied for false reports, and in aggravated cases a farmer can be punished by having his farm placed under operation by a state trustee.

Only one council member, its lone Communist delegate, opposed the measure.

(In Washington, Gen. Lucious D. Clay, American military governor, said the Army plans to raise the basic German food ration from 1,550 calories a day to 1,800 by July 1. He said food collections from German farmers were about 80 per cent of the goal.)

The widespread walkout in 26 major cities and scores of towns in the American zone state crippled communications, industry and most trade, and was attended by mass demonstrations at several places. Communists, who supported the strike, were prominent in the demonstrations with their red banners.

Amishman Is Sentenced To Penal Farm For Chaining His Daughter

GOSHEN, Ind., Jan. 23 (AP)—Samuel Hochstettler, 75-year-old, white-bearded leader of a rural Amish church, was sentenced today to six months on the state penal farm for keeping his 41-year-old daughter, Lucy, roped and chained for 10 years because she refused to join the strict religious sect.

Later three Goshen physicians examined the daughter, and Dr. H. E. Vander Bogart, spokesman, said they agreed she was insane and should be confined to an institution.

Her father told Circuit Judge Aldo J. Simpson at his arraignment that he had confined Lucy to her bed for seven years by rope and for the past three years by chains.

Sheriff Luther Yoder said the woman's wrists bore chain marks when he found her bound to her bed in a small, dimly-lighted room on the Hochstettler farm yesterday. He said one wrist was bleeding.

The stern church elder pleaded guilty to an assault and battery charge today, and Judge Simpson remonstrated:

"A man in your position and of your intelligence should know better than commit such an inhuman act."

"Her mind had gone bad," Hochsettler replied. "It was the only way we knew how to manage her."

Miss Hochstettler was taken to the nearby home of a sister. Their mother died in November, and Lucy had been living alone with her father.

Runaway Piano Prodigy Defends Whirl Of Night Life With Sailor

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Runaway Jacqueline (Jackie) Horner spiritedly defended in Superior Court today her gay whirl of San Francisco night life with a 19-year-old sailor.

The youthful Hollywood piano prodigy, who left home January 13 because of what she said was too much practice and "not enough fun," testified in behalf of Seaman Wallace Wells, 19, Hood River, Ore., charged with contributing to delinquency of a minor.

Judge I. L. Harris refused to hold the young seaman to Superior Court and referred both cases to juvenile authorities.

"He never touched me," the girl told Judge Harris.

"I didn't think we were doing anything wrong and we didn't do anything wrong."

Hunted across the nation for eight days, Jackie was found in a hotel room with Wells by police inspectors Wednesday morning.

After the hearing, Wells was committed into custody of his commanding officer, Lt. Comdr. J. L. Eubanks, of the navy tanker Cimarron, to which Wells is attached.

Jackie's other companion, Gloria Jean Costello, a night club photographer also known as Gloria Jean Miles and Jean Armstrong, will be given a preliminary hearing on a like charge tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the possibility that Jackie may be "protecting" some one in her whirl at night spots here was voiced by Paul Hill, Los Angeles attorney representing Jackie's mother, Mrs. Clara Horner. He said he felt there might be a potential "white slave" element in the case.

Control Program Cuts Cancer Toll

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23. (AP)—If facilities and information available at present were fully utilized, Maryland's cancer death rate could be reduced by one-fourth, county health officers were told today.

They head Dr. W. Ross Cameron, director of the State Health Department's cancer control program, outline achievements of the project which currently has cancer detection clinics in 11 counties.

"Response of the public to these clinics has been almost overwhelming," Dr. Cameron said. "Some of the clinics have their appointment lists filled up for months."

Both he and Dr. Howard Jones, of the Maryland branch of the American Cancer Society, stressed the importance of educational work in the war on cancer.

Jones urged the health officers, who concluded a two-day quarterly meeting here today, to persist in the effort to bring the educational program, which he termed "almost ridiculously brief and simple," into full public awareness.

Earlier, Dr. Kenneth Jones discussed the future of Maryland's mental hygiene program, which is, uniquely, an intergrated part of the Free State's public health work.

Dr. Jones, lent to the health department by the United States Public Health Service, said the plan envisaged the mushrooming of mental hygiene clinics in the counties somewhat like the cancer detection units.

In discussing the latter, Dr. Cameron reported that during the past year some 2,500 persons had been examined and cancer diagnosed in about 25, or one per cent of them.

Marshall Statement Recalled

As if to make sure that he could not again be misunderstood, Eisenhower said in closing:

"My decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive. I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept the nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

Today's stand by the popular supreme commander of the Allied forces in the invasion of Europe recalled statements of Secretary of State Marshall and Gen. William T. Sherman of Civil War fame. Marshall a year ago said he could not be drafted for the presidency. Sherman in 1884 said he would not accept a nomination and if elected would not serve.

In Topeka, Kas., Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, said "Gen. Eisenhower has spoken, but still unanswered is whether the American people will accept his statement as their final decision."

U. S. May Reach Truman's Wheat Export Objective

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The United States may yet be able to reach President Truman's goal of exporting 500,000,000 bushels of wheat to shortage areas during the crop year ending June 30.

This possibility was shown by an Agriculture Department report today that there is sufficient wheat remaining in this country to meet the President's objective if farmers continue to hold down on feeding of this grain to livestock, as they have been asked to do by the government.

The department said stocks of wheat on farms, in mills, elevators, terminals and other storage positions— totaled 795,000,000 bushels as of January 1. The supply at the start of the crop year was 1,449,000,000 bushels.

Coal Council Organized; Lewis Rejects Invitation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — Secretary of Interior Krug tonight named 18 persons who have accepted his invitation to form a national bituminous coal council to advise the Interior Department. John L. Lewis was not among them.

Lewis disclosed yesterday he had rejected the invitation in a letter which said he could "concieve of nothing more anemic or futile" than such a council.

All the persons named are mining company executives. A spokesman for Krug said no other union representatives, aside from Lewis, were invited.

Fugitive Receives Another Reprieve

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23. (AP)—Brent L. Merrick, 53, who says his romance led to a Florida chain gang 23 years ago, won another reprive today from the demand for his return to the southern state.

Judge William J. McWilliams, who said "nothing would please me more than to turn this man loose" continued the case until Monday.

Sen. Herbert H. Balch, Easton, argued Merrick's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and said later he would ask Gov. Lane to intervene with Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, in an attempt to free Merrick.

Merrick was arrested last year convicted of an assault charge and sent to the House of Correction. While there state police discovered he was wanted in Florida and that state requested his return.

The fugitive said today, "if they send me back, I know I would never make it. I'm too old."

He related how he had gone to Florida shortly after the First World War. At Melbourne, Fla., he said he fell in love with a girl "nearly 18."

He denied he had had any improper relations with her, but was convicted of carnal knowledge after they had been found together in a Miami hotel. He was sentenced to five years in the Florida state prison.

Maryland Birth Rate In 1947 Broke Record

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—The State Health Department looked back through its 1947 records today and decided Maryland had a healthy year, with some significant declines in death rates.

Besides that, there were 26.1 new babies for each 1,000 of population —a new record in the 31 years Maryland has participated in the United States Census Bureau's birth registration system.

The Health Department was encouraged by a drop in the tuberculosis death rate from 56.6 to 55.5 for each 100,000 of population — the lowest yet recorded.

Actually, the death rate last year was 11 per 1,000 as compared with 10.9 in 19.46, but the department had no explanation: People are living much longer these days, so oldsters make up a greater percentage of the population.

Sole Candidate Loses Job As Cop

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(AP)—The city police force came within a fraction of an inch of having one applicant too many for 20 jobs open in the department.

But one man was caught trying to fool the examiners by hiding a pair of inner soles inside his socks in an effort to give him the necessary height.

After eliminating him, the department found it had just enough applicants to fill ranks.

Grain Trading

Pauley himself has specifically denied that he did so.

"He had top level knowledge of what this government was going to do on commodities this country was going to purchase and ship to foreign countries," Stassen replied.

He added that it didn't seem reasonable to assume that Pauley would disregard this knowledge when he was speculating on the markets.

"I think one of the truest things Mr. Pauley testified to before this committee was that he was not gambling" Stassen said.

Stassen declined to give the names of the 11 he said were profit-making "insiders."

He said, however, that two of them are Pauley and Ralph K. Davies, former deputy Petroleum Administrator for War.

Stassen, a Republican presidential aspirant, specifically excluded Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, who he said was only a small operator.

A motorist backing out of an alley smashed into his car.

Control Program Cuts Cancer Toll

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23. (AP)—If facilities and information available at present were fully utilized, Maryland's cancer death rate could be reduced by one-fourth, county health officers were told today.

They head Dr. W. Ross Cameron, director of the State Health Department's cancer control program, outline achievements of the project which currently has cancer detection clinics in 11 counties.

"Response of the public to these clinics has been almost overwhelming," Dr. Cameron said. "Some of the clinics have their appointment lists filled up for months."

Both he and Dr. Howard Jones, of the Maryland branch of the American Cancer Society, stressed the importance of educational work in the war on cancer.

Jones urged the health officers, who concluded a two-day quarterly meeting here today, to persist in the effort to bring the educational program, which he termed "almost ridiculously brief and simple," into full public awareness.

Earlier, Dr. Kenneth Jones discussed the future of Maryland's mental hygiene program, which is, uniquely, an intergrated part of the Free State's public health work.

Dr. Jones, lent to the health department by the United States Public Health Service, said the plan envisaged the mushrooming of mental hygiene clinics in the counties somewhat like the cancer detection units.

In discussing the latter, Dr. Cameron reported that during the past year some 2,500 persons had been examined and cancer diagnosed in about 25, or one per cent of them.

hower "hopes through this means to inform every interested person or group that he is not in politics and that he would refuse the nomination if offered."

Marshall Statement Recalled

As if to make sure that he could not again be misunderstood, Eisenhower said in closing:

"My decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive. I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept the nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me."

Today's stand by the popular supreme commander of the Allied forces in the invasion of Europe recalled statements of Secretary of State Marshall and Gen. William T. Sherman of Civil War fame. Marshall a year ago said he could not be drafted for the presidency. Sherman in 1884 said he would not accept a nomination and if elected would not serve.

In Topeka, Kas., Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, said "Gen. Eisenhower has spoken, but still unanswered is whether the American people will accept his statement as their final decision."

U. S. May Reach Truman's Wheat Export Objective

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The United States may yet be able to reach President Truman's goal of exporting 500,000,000 bushels of wheat to shortage areas during the crop year ending June 30.

This possibility was shown by an Agriculture Department report today that there is sufficient wheat remaining in this country to meet the President's objective if farmers continue to hold down on feeding of this grain to livestock, as they have been asked to do by the government.

The department said stocks of wheat on farms, in mills, elevators, terminals and other storage positions— totaled 795,000,000 bushels as of January 1. The supply at the start of the crop year was 1,449,000,000 bushels.

Coal Council Organized; Lewis Rejects Invitation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 — (AP) — Secretary of Interior Krug tonight named 18 persons who have accepted his invitation to form a national bituminous coal council to advise the Interior Department. John L. Lewis was not among them.

Lewis disclosed yesterday he had rejected the invitation in a letter which said he could "concieve of nothing more anemic or futile" than such a council.

All the persons named are mining company executives. A spokesman for Krug said no other union representatives, aside from Lewis, were invited.

France, Italy Back Plan

LONDON, Jan. 23—(AP)—France and Italy expressed favorable reaction today to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's proposal for a consolidatiaon of Western European nations. The first Russian reaction was negative.

Fugitive Receives Another Reprieve

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23. (AP)—Brent L. Merrick, 53, who says his romance led to a Florida chain gang 23 years ago, won another reprive today from the demand for his return to the southern state.

Judge William J. McWilliams, who said "nothing would please me more than to turn this man loose" continued the case until Monday.

Sen. Herbert H. Balch, Easton, argued Merrick's petition for a writ of habeas corpus and said later he would ask Gov. Lane to intervene with Gov. Millard Caldwell, of Florida, in an attempt to free Merrick.

Merrick was arrested last year convicted of an assault charge and sent to the House of Correction. While there state police discovered he was wanted in Florida and that state requested his return.

The fugitive said today, "if they send me back, I know I would never make it. I'm too old."

He related how he had gone to Florida shortly after the First World War. At Melbourne, Fla., he said he fell in love with a girl "nearly 18."

He denied he had had any improper relations with her, but was convicted of carnal knowledge after they had been found together in a Miami hotel. He was sentenced to five years in the Florida state prison.

Maryland Birth Rate In 1947 Broke Record

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—The State Health Department looked back through its 1947 records today and decided Maryland had a healthy year, with some significant declines in death rates.

Besides that, there were 26.1 new babies for each 1,000 of population —a new record in the 31 years Maryland has participated in the United States Census Bureau's birth registration system.

The Health Department was encouraged by a drop in the tuberculosis death rate from 56.6 to 55.5 for each 100,000 of population — the lowest yet recorded.

Actually, the death rate last year was 11 per 1,000 as compared with 10.9 in 19.46, but the department had no explanation: People are living much longer these days, so oldsters make up a greater percentage of the population.

Sole Candidate Loses Job As Cop

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(AP)—The city police force came within a fraction of an inch of having one applicant too many for 20 jobs open in the department.

But one man was caught trying to fool the examiners by hiding a pair of inner soles inside his socks in an effort to give him the necessary height.

After eliminating him, the department found it had just enough applicants to fill ranks.

Pauley himself has specifically denied that he did so.

"He had top level knowledge of what this government was going to do on commodities this country was going to purchase and ship to foreign countries," Stassen replied.

He added that it didn't seem reasonable to assume that Pauley would disregard this knowledge when he was speculating on the markets.

"I think one of the truest things Mr. Pauley testified to before this committee was that he was not gambling" Stassen said.

Stassen declined to give the names of the 11 he said were profit-making "insiders."

He said, however, that two of them are Pauley and Ralph K. Davies, former deputy Petroleum Administrator for War.

Stassen, a Republican presidential aspirant, specifically excluded Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, who he said was only a small operator.

The station will go on a sixteen-hour broadcast daily after April 1 when it has moved into new quarters. Programming of the new broadcasting hours will stress educational, youth and music programs.

There's Always Room For Another Dent

BRIDGEPORT, Ill. (AP) — Mathias Ford, 33, believes he must have a corner on motorist's bad luck.

Ford's automobile and another car sideswiped, damaging his own considerably. He continued to nearby Lawrenceville, where a youthful motorcyclist hit his car. Then, later, as he left a Lawrenceville City Hall hearing in connection with the two mishaps, Ford was greeted by a familiar sight.

A motorist backing out of an alley smashed into his car.

Bierman Fined $16 On Assault Charge

Arrested here last week on a disorderly conduct charge, James E. Bierman, Route 4, Mexico Farms, was fined $10 and $6 cost yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court after he pleaded guilty to assaulting Thomas A. Cline, 416 Arch Street.

Bierman was arrested January 14 by City Police as the result of a fight in the vicinity of Fifth Street. Booked on the disorderly conduct charge, he forfeited $20 in Police Court.

Cline later swore out a warrant charging Bierman with assault before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Baltimore Army District Recruiters Reach Quota

Lt. Col. John G. Settle, commanding officer of the Baltimore Army and Air Force recruiting district, announced yesterday that the district reached its monthly quota of 600 enlistments on Wednesday.

The local recruiting office reported Wednesday that 69 men were sent to Baltimore for processing, exceeding the quota of 50 by 19 men.

Yesterday three men enlisted here. They are Richard L. Davis, this city; Bruce Edward Null, Fort Ashby, W. Va., and Junior Robert Evans, New Creek, W. Va.

SS Losses Great Here, Wood Says

Residents of the Cumberland area are losing nearly $1,000 a month by failing to file Social Security claims, on time, William W. Wood, area field manager, told members of the Cumberland Life Underwriters Association.

Wood said that benefits are made retroactive for three months only, and explained that if a claimant does not file for a year after the death of the insured employe, nine months benefit will be lost.

A discussion was held and the association said plans to hold a seminar on Social Security in the near future are being considered.

Reports Coat Stolen

A man identified as Philip V. Becker, Baltimore Pike, yesterday reported to police that his gabardine coat, two handkerchiefs and a plaid scarf were stolen from the Alibi Cocktail Lounge, Baltimore and Mechanic Street, Thursday.

UNUSUAL WEDDING TO OCCUR HERE

A double wedding ceremony, one of unusual interest, will be solemnized here next Thursday, when identical twin sisters will be married to identical twin brothers.

It will not be a case of double vision when Arvella Muntzing and Louella Muntzing, 22, twin sisters from Maysville, W. Va., walk to the altar with Oscie and Elvern Simmons, 29, twin brothers from near Petersburg. According to local Court House attaches, who issued the couples' applications to wed Thursday, it will be the first time in their recollection that nuptials uniting twin brothers to twin sisters have been performed in the city.

Starting their romance after serving in the Army overseas, the twin brothers, Oscie and Elvern, decided that what was good for one was good for another.

Arvella and Louella, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Muntzing, Maysville, are graduates of Petersburg High School. Since leaving school the girls have been employed in Thompson's Market in Petersburg, often to the confusion of customers.

Meanwhile, the brothers parted paths in the service. Elvern, Louella's betrothed, left the farm of his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Simmons, Pansy, W. Va., to see service in the Pacific Theatre. An infantryman, he was sent to Australia in the early part of the war and from there took part in the campaigns for New Guinea, Dutch East Indies, Philippines and Okinawa. He saw three years, seven months duty.

Oscie was in the Army four years and four months, but participated in only one invasion, the re-taking of the Philippines.

Elvern is now employed as a mechanic by the Muntzing Motor Company in Petersburg, while Oscie works on his mother's farm at Pansy.

After the wedding here the couples plan to continue to reside in the Petersburg section.

Grand Master Of Odd Fellows To Come Here Feb. 27

Charles V. Tracey, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and his staff will visit Chosen Friend Lodge 34, February 27.

The meeting is to be held at 8 o'clock and during the evening there will be a service commemorating the founding of the order, 129 years ago.

Both the birthday of Thomas Wildey, the founder, and the birthday of Schuyler Colfax, founder of the Rebekah degree, will be celebrated with a program. It will be presented by members of Chosen Friend Lodge, 34, Chapel Hill Lodge, 53, Colfax Rebekah Lodge, 1, Canton Allegany 4 and the Ladies Auxiliary and Cumberland Encampment, 23.

Plans were formulated at a meeting of a committee from the various groups last night at the Odd Fellows hall.

Four County Farm Boys To Take 4-H Courses

Four members of Allegany County 4-H Clubs will attend a Leadership Training School Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, at the University of Maryland, College Park, according to Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent.

Earl Twigg, Oldtown, will take a course in dairying; Jack Morgan, Frostburg, will take a course in conservation; Harold Morris, Flintstone, will study livestock, and Roy Shyrock will attend classes on tractor operation and maintenance.

Instructors are Ralph Porterfield, extension service specialist, dairy practices; Ural G. Bee, livestock; Al Krewatch, tractor; and J. C. Cotton and Harry Dengler conservation, which includes wildlife, soil and forestry.

Local Trio Arrested Second Time In 2 Days

Three Cumberland men who were sentenced to jail in default of $10 bonds Thursday on charges of disorderly conduct were re-arrested last night on similar charges preferred by Charles Stockley.

Police said the trio, Patrick Dentinger, 109 Decatur Street, Harley Bratt, 236 Oldtown Road, and Joseph Files, RFD 4, this city, were charged with disorderly conduct in a warrant sworn to by Stockely.

The three men were fined in Police Court Thursday after they were arrested Wednesday night at the B. and O. Bolt and Forge Restaurant, Williams Street, on charges of fighting.

Police said Stockley charges they also created a disturbance in his place of business before they were arrested at the B. and O. restaurant.

UNUSUAL WEDDING TO OCCUR HERE

A double wedding ceremony, one of unusual interest, will be solemnized here next Thursday, when identical twin sisters will be married to identical twin brothers.

It will not be a case of double vision when Arvella Muntzing and Louella Muntzing, 22, twin sisters from Maysville, W. Va., walk to the altar with Oscie and Elvern Simmons, 29, twin brothers from near Petersburg. According to local Court House attaches, who issued the couples' applications to wed Thursday, it will be the first time in their recollection that nuptials uniting twin brothers to twin sisters have been performed in the city.

Starting their romance after serving in the Army overseas, the twin brothers, Oscie and Elvern, decided that what was good for one was good for another.

Arvella and Louella, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Muntzing, Maysville, are graduates of Petersburg High School. Since leaving school the girls have been employed in Thompson's Market in Petersburg, often to the confusion of customers.

Meanwhile, the brothers parted paths in the service. Elvern, Louella's betrothed, left the farm of his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Simmons, Pansy, W. Va., to see service in the Pacific Theatre. An infantryman, he was sent to Australia in the early part of the war and from there took part in the campaigns for New Guinea, Dutch East Indies, Philippines and Okinawa. He saw three years, seven months duty.

Oscie was in the Army four years and four months, but participated in only one invasion, the re-taking of the Philippines.

Elvern is now employed as a mechanic by the Muntzing Motor Company in Petersburg, while Oscie works on his mother's farm at Pansy.

After the wedding here the couples plan to continue to reside in the Petersburg section.

Green Light Or Red Light On Rationing?

With Secretary of Agriculture becoming almost hysterical in demanding meat rationing and proponents of the scheme in Congress giving tongue to the cry, this would seem to be a propitious time to pause and ask them how they are going to enforce this police state plan.

As everyone knows who had anything to do with meat buying several years ago, the black market will take over the instant the clamp goes on. Everyone who could went into the black market and as a result rationing applied only to those few who followed Washington directives and to those who did not have money to buy from black market sources.

The government had the entire wartime set-up for enforcement and it failed miserably to channel the meat business into the rationed groove.

So far as the public knows, plans for enforcing the next rationing order, if it comes, will again be entrusted to officials roaming the land. The scuffle for soft jobs probably is already under way. The result would be the turmoil which prevailed when meat was rationed in the past.

If the government plans to try the old police state scheme of enforcement again, what would be the point of rationing? There would be none and it might as well be forgotten now.

According to all the signs, the nation's meat supply will be short in the period from March through May. For that reason President Truman asks Congress for authority to ration meat—and a lot of other commodities—at his discretion. The majority leaders in Congress are opposed to rationing. Most Republicans fear it would revive the black market, which this country had a taste of during the war and which has overrun the Continent of Europe. Once a black market gains headway, as is more than possible in peacetime, only the well-to-do, as we pointed out above, would be able to afford meat and the entire country would lose the valuable by-products of slaughtering. At the same time, it is Republican policy to keep an open mind on the subject of rationing, should a really critical meat shortage develop.

The meat-rationing bill which Senator Flanders, Vermont Republican, introduced this week departs from the policy of his party. His measure would authorize the Department of Agriculture to set up a complete system of meat-rationing, including the printing of ration-books, and would appropriate $1,000,000 for the purpose. More important, Flanders would authorize the President to submit a detailed rationing program to Congress and this program would go into effect automatically unless both Houses of Congress disapproved it within 30 days. Under this plan, the Administration would prepare a rationing system and Congress would have the responsibility of stopping it within a limited period, if it approved.

Republican policy is to leave with Congress the power to turn on the green light if it wishes. Senator Flanders would give the Administration the green light and would require Congress to turn on the red light to stop something which it had already authorized the Administration to prepare. Judging by this bill, it is hard to understand why Senator Flanders says he does not favor rationing.

Gauging Weapons

How does man's conception of the power of destructive weapons he has invented stack up with his beliefs prior to World War II? The degree of accuracy military men have obtained is of great interest to the civil population.

For years prior to World War II it was held that another war could last only a few days during which all the cities would be destroyed. The war in Spain changed the conception of bombing power. It was proved that a people did not surrender when a city was hammered to pieces and that bombers were little more than long-range artillery. A long bitter war was fought, upsetting many calculations.

Now comes the President's air policy commission with a declaration that the nation must be ready by 1953.

Atomic power is the great fear. People have heard of little else since Hiroshima, and the vision of planes sweeping over the land to obliterate the cities of the nation in one night does not die. Guided missiles also are feared, for they might cross oceans and dump their deadly atomic loads.

Measures of meeting the threat are not revealed, but there are many persons who hold there is no defense.

Germ war probably is not as great a threat. Germs, like gas, hit the attacker as well as the defender.

As in the days before the bomber was tested, no one knows what the effect of atomic weapons used in profusion would be. There is no alternative to maintenance of a strong air force and concentration on invention of both offensive and defensive weapons.

Hope For Europe

There is an old saying that nobody can conquer the Chinese because the teeming millions of China will eventually absorb any invader.

It is easy to become discouraged by the European situation, over which men labor in hopes of finding a solution within a few months or years. History provides the ultimate answer, but decades are required for it to mature.

Atilla the Hun swept Europe down to that seat of the Christian religion, Rome, and everything was ransacked and wrecked. Europe recovered and did not adopt the Hun way of life.

The Goths and Visgoths swept in hordes over the land, but Europe staggered out from under the effects of the invasion. Charlemagne repulsed another fighting horde to free Europe of the invader. In more recent times the entire western part of Europe, except England, was ground under the heel of Napoleon, but history set and again the governments emerged.

Now Russia has overrun the Balkans and other eastern European nations and is sabotaging Allied occupied Germany in hopes she can smash the recovery plan. If Russia extends her aggression, past history indicates that Europe will again emerge from under the conqueror's heel. But it may take a century.

Petrillo for the second time has been declared not guilty, both times by the same judge. But it is understood he will not get a permanent award until at least one more try.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Adrenal Gland Disorder

Years ago—93, to be exact—Thomas Addison described a malady in which the patient developed anemia, general languor, irritability of the stomach, and a peculiar discoloration of the skin. He found that tuberculosis of the adrenal glands was responsible and, in honor of his pioneer work, the condition is still referred to as "Addison's disease."

In only half the cases is tuberculosis responsible. The adrenal structures have many duties but the part involved in Addison's disease (the cortex) helps to keep fluids and various salts of the body in the proper balance. When this function is lost the system is no longer able to retain certain vital chemicals especially sodium, which is one of the chief constituents of table salt. Such an abnormality has so many implications it is little wonder that patients with this ailment exhibit a variety of symptoms.

The disorder begins so gradually that the individuals are hardly aware of its inception. As each day passes, fatigue and weakness become more pronounced and the victim looks just as tired and pepless as he feels. In time, even talking is an effort; by the end of the day the voice actually fails. Meanwhile, appetite wanes and weight is lost.

Before long a friend is likely to comment on the changing color of the skin of the afflicted person. The exposed parts such as the face, neck and hands look dirty, resembling a summer's tan that has failed to leave. In others, a different type of pigmentation occurs, either freckle-like or blue-black areas. The lesions are most noticeable on the membranes covering the inside of the mouth.

To add to the confusion, every now and then attacks of severe nausea, vomiting, or abdominal pain appear. Nervousness and irritability are reflected in a cranky disposition. Examination at this time would reveal little more except low blood pressure.

In Addison's day nothing could be done and ultimately the patient succumbed. Now, there are several tests to identify the condition and hospitalization is required so that the procedures can be done under careful supervision. During the last ten years, treatment has undergone revolutionary changes. The administration of large amounts of table salt, plus a diet low in sodium, helps immeasurably because sodium encourages the excretion of salt.

An advancement came with the discovery of an adrenal cortical hormone. This extract can be injected and controls symptoms in much the same way as insulin does in the diabetic. It is possible to incorporate this glandular substance into a pellet that can be inserted beneath the skin where it takes from 9 to 12 months to be absorbed. The plan eliminates the bother of daily "shots" but is not advised until the individual has been studied carefully to determine the exact requirements. Otherwise too much or too little might be used.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

When President Truman announced plans to build a balcony as an addition to the White House, it was quite a surprise! I never knew Romeo and Juliet were Democrats.

But that's the first time the President has been in agreement with the opposition. Both he and the Republicans agree there should be a change in the White House.

It was really a splendid idea. That way, Margaret could do her concerts at home and the President could sell tickets for the balcony.

The President wanted the balcony built to get a better view. He would have had more chance of hitting the target with his slingshot the next time he saw Henry Wallace walking down Pennsylvania avenue.

The Chief Executive really wasn't going to build a new balcony. He just wanted to put some paint on that platform the Republicans refused to use.

But there were no ulterior or political motives behind the construction of that proposed balcony. It was just that Mrs. Truman loves to make homemade things and she needed a cool place to store her sauerkraut and pickles.

The good citizens had already started to contribute materials . . . nails lumber and paint. But one smart-aleck Republican made the President mad. He shipped Mr. Truman a taxpayer and the tag on the crate said, "He's stucco."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Bluff, genial Secretary of the Army Royall has a unique way of combining charm with an ability to put Cabinet colleagues on the hot spot.

His retention of Ed Pauley as Specal Assistant to the Army has caused Harry Truman more trouble than any other recent political bombshell. Perhaps more fundamental, though little noticed, has been the hole into which Royall placed his friend, the Attorney General.

He has given Attorney General Tom Clark the alternative of either prosecuting Royall or violating his own oath of office by failure to prosecute.

The law in question is Section 201, Title 18 of the U.S. Code which declares it to be a criminal offense to use federal funds to influence legislation before Congress.. The law is clear and categoric. It provides no exceptions or alibis.

Yet Royall has brazenly flouted the law in using more than $50,000 of federal funds to propagandize for military conscription. On top of this, when called before Congress he not only admitted he had violated the law, but said he had "no apologies to make."

First Congressional report on Royall's activities was made July 23 by the House Expenditures Subcommittee, Rep. Forrest Harness of Indiana, Chairman.

How The Army Lobbied

This showed that the Army had spent $36,293 to produce a military-training propaganda film, plus $14,244 of the taxpayers' money to distribute the film. Also, the War Department had paid two civilians—Alan Coutts of New York City and Mrs. Arthur Woods, a former lieutenant colonel with a fine record in the WAC—$25 a day, plus expenses, to tour the country drumming up public support for peacetime conscription.

The report also quoted former Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Petersen as admitting that Mrs. Woods and Mr. Coutts were employed "to sell the (UMT) program to the public with the hope that the public would sell it to the Congress."

"Mrs. Woods admitted that she laid particular emphasis upon the spiritual values of universal military training in her discussions with girl scout groups," the Harness report stated, adding that she had endeavored to interest the National Board of the Girl Scouts of America in showing a plan for peace" at their meetings.

Harness also quoted the following paragraph from an Army-prepared 'outline for veterans' radio panels": "The opposition to universal military training is generally not based on fact, but rather on such generalities as democracy, morals, aggression, education, and pacifism. The chief opponents are parents, church groups, educators, subversive groups, and a large section of the public which does not think."

In other words, the Army was trying to tell veterans what they should say in radio broadcasts supposed to be voluntary efforts of the veterans themselves.

The Harness report further charged that numerous people "of all walks of life" had been flown in military planes at the taxpayers' expense to the Army's UMT experimental camp at Fort Knox, Ky., where they were "conducted on tours of the unit by selected guides, who were able to sell the virtues of the plan under consideration."

Will Justice Department Prosecute?

This Congressional report was approved by the entire committee—both Democrats and Republicans—even including Jim Wadsworth of New York, father-in-law of Stuart Symington, at that time Assistant Secretary of War for Air. It was then sent to the Justice Department.

There it has been gathering dust ever since. Inquiries at the Justice Department last week brought the reply from alleged information officer Leo Cadison that "the FBI is still investigating." That, however, is not true. From other sources, it was ascertained that the FBI finished its report long ago and that it is highly unfavorable to Secretary Royall. It found him guilty of violating the law.

On top of all this, Royall was called before the House Expenditures Subcommittee just a few days ago. This was when he brazenly refused to promise that he would not violate the law in the future.

Royall And Black Market

Secretary Royall also violated the spirit of President Truman's repeated attempts to hold down prices when he advertised his 1947 Cadillac sedan for sale at $4,200 after he had paid only $2,925 for it.

Royall first approached the Cadillac agency in Washington and asked them to buy the car. They offered him the regular list price. To do otherwise would have put them in the black market. But this high-up member of the official Truman family refused to sell for the legal price and advertised his car for sale at $4,200. When this columnist and others called to inquire about the car, somebody got worried and it was hurriedly withdrawn from sale.

Note—The Army and Congress might find it worth while to study the plan of ex-Congressman Kent Keller of Illinois for an American school army—a series of universities for underprivileged boys.

Eisenhower Held Unlikely To Gain By Taft-Dewey Deadlock

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the stage of the Republican Presidential situation just ahead, and continuing until the national convention and perhaps into it, much will depend on a factor of psychology, human nature.

At the meeting of the Republican National Committee in Washington this week, there was a general judgment about the present status of the race for the Presidential nomination. Briefly this was: Governor Dewey and Senator Taft far in the lead, these two having much the largest numbers of delegates in prospect, but with each materially short of a majority. The judgment was that the numbers of prospective delegates for each is at this stage roughly equal, at least without a determining difference between them, though with Governor Dewey likely to have somewhat more.

From this the judgment went into the field of speculation, pointing toward various outcomes. One speculation expressed itself in familiar political terms, a "deadlock" after the early balloting, with Dewey and Taft "killing each other off," and the nomination going to some other possibility.

Wish To Avoid Party Split

Whether there is a "killing each other off" depends much on whether emotional tension may arise during the coming months between the two leaders and their respective lieutenants, delegates and followings. The two principals are not likely to be governed by emotion. It is already apparent that both Taft and Dewey have been pointedly guarded against expressions having the nature of attack on each other, or likely to incite mutual hostility on the part of their respective followings. For this there is good reason in the wish to avoid a party split that might detract from party success in the election.

But lieutenants and managers and minor leaders may not be so prudent as principals. Historically it has been frequent, when there have been two outstanding leaders in a race for a party Presidential nomination, for the following and delegates of each to work themselves into emotions of mutual hostility. To take the present case as a suppositious illustration, Dewey delegates would arrive at a stage in which they would say, "anyone but Taft", and vice versa for Taft delegates. This has accounted, in both parties, for nominations of men who had not figured prominently in the race—the nomination of Harding after Wood and Loudon had killed each other off in the Republican convention of 1920, and of John W. Davis after Smith and McAdoo had killed each other off in the Democratic Convention of 1924.

But to mention this phase of political history is to say it does not exist in the present picture. While there are large groups of leaders and voters for Taft and for Dewey, no one has heard anyone cry "Dewey or die", nor corresponding affirmation in behalf of Taft.

May Have Common Adversary

This lack of strong feeling between the two and their followings, indeed a likelihood of good feeling between them, is increased by the possibility that the two may have, so to speak, a common adversary. If the movement in behalf of General Eisenhower reaches a point where he is a formidable challenger of both Dewey and Taft, the incentive of the two and their followings to more or less cooperate, or at least avoid strong hostility, is obvious.

If it should happen, in the convention, that Dewey and Taft come to the stage of an inconclusive tug of war, with the convention obliged to turn to someone else, the likelihood of Eisenhower being the beneficiary is reduced by a recent memory. In the 1940 convention there arose a condition having some similarity to the present. After Dewey and Taft had been the leaders in the first three ballots, it became apparent or at least it was felt by many delegates, that there was deadlock between them. In this condition the convention turned to one who in the eyes of most of the delegates, was an outsider to the party organization, Wendell Willkie. The experience with Willkie in 1940 was, in the minds of many party leaders, not a happy memory. To say that this memory would work to the detriment of General Eisenhower, and thus to imply comparison between Eisenhower and Willkie, might be unfair. Yet it is a fact that the memory leads party leaders to feel that the Presidential nomination should go to one with orthodox political party experience.

Labor Leader Recognizes Need For Increased Productivity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—There's a lot of confusion in the news—and much of it can be traced to the superficial way in which President Truman handles his press conferences. Questions are answered without preparation, and the result is a kind of wisecracking reply every now and then from the President which doesn't add to his stature and doesn't help the people understand what their governmental spokesman really is saying.

Thus, a reporter asked the President what he thought of the proposal by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, that the work-week be lengthened from 40 to 45 hours so as to get increased production. Mr. Truman wisecracked back that Mr. Wilson was living in the 1890's.

But just about the same time that the press conference was going on, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor—who may be of advanced years but certainly would not concede that he is living in the 1890's—testified before the Senate banking committee that labor and management should work out a program whereby the work-week should be lengthened from 40 to 45 hours.

Here is a recognition by the head of the nation's largest labor organization of the principle that increased productivity is a way to beat inflation and that the way to get increased production is by lengthening the work - week five hours.

Differences Between Proposals

There are differences, of course, between the Wilson and the Green proposals, but President Truman apparently is so unfamiliar with the whole problem of increased productivity in relation to the shortage of goods that he has treated it indifferently in nearly every public statement on inflation he has made. It is no surprise, therefore, to find him treating Mr. Wilson's suggestion flippantly.

The American people have the idea that a President of the United States gives considerable time to thinking out public problems and at least reads about the fundamentals of national questions so that he can be expected to issue considered statements when asked for comments.

Mr. Truman, however, is so far away from reality himself that he doesn't know that Mr. Wilson's proposal was not intended as a permanent addition to the work-week but simply as an emergency measure to get increased production and bring prices down through enlarged output.

Mr. Green argues that the extra five hours should be paid for at time-and-a-half rates and that the extra hour be tacked on to the work-day. Mr. Wilson had proposed that the five hours be paid for at straight-time. What he was saying, in effect, was that, under present law, manufacturers cannot work extra hours without paying a penalty in costs and that often there was not enough work to put on a full extra eight-hour shift.

Recognizes Importance Of Point

Mr. Green apparently recognizes the importance of this point but his cure is to keep the time-and-a-half rates and not change the law but get the unions to agree to longer days. Even though the law permits a longer work-week at overtime rates, many unions forbid overtime or put a penalty on its use at a rate higher than time-and-a-half.

This correspondent suggested several months ago that a good way to achieve the same result would be to pay straight-time rates for hours over and above present schedules, so that the extra hours beyond those now worked would be compensated at straight-time but with a tax rebate from the government as an incentive. This would mean, for instance, in those factories where 40 hours are now paid at straight-time and two hours of overtime are customarily worked and paid for at time-and-a-half, the present schedule of payment would be retained but any extra hours—above 42, in this instance—would be paid for at straight-time and earn a tax rebate or tax credit.

In any event, the important thing is that there is a revival of discussion of lengthening the work-week. The President has said again and again that inflation happens when there is a shortage of goods and an excess of purchasing power or demand. There is no way to cure shortages except to reduce demand or increase supply. Since the public is against rationing, there is only the course of increased production left. If this is retarded by penalties of higher costs on overtime production, the objective—an increased supply of goods—cannot be attained.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Atheism by Law

DR. NATHAN SCHACHNER has written, for the current issue of the American Jewish Year Book, a learned and interesting article entitled, "Church, State and Education," which shows what the law has been and is concerning religion in the schools of the various parts of the United States. While his summary of the history of this subject is of value, what he misses altogether is that atheism may be taught our children, but not the word of God, not The Bible, not the Psalms, not the Prophets, not the Apostles. Karl Marx is legal in the schools, but not Isaiah or St. Mark. They suffer from Biblical affiliation.

For many, this is a very serious question. They say that religion has no place in the schools. But has anti-religion a place? The real difficulty is that the Catholics object to the St. James Version of The Bible; the Protestants object to the Doual Version; and the Jews object to both.

But does anyone object to a materialistic, biologic interpretation of man's place in society; does anyone complain that his child is being bombarded with an amoral position that man is a product of his environment and that morals are a matter of superstition and social pressures?

In a word, all the talk of Church and State has nothing to do with the fundamental question, which is, what is being done to offset and counteract their corruption by teachers who are atheists and who propagandize an atheistic conception of morals in the public schools?

Dr. Schachner's article does not deal with this at all. Unfortunately, most of those who discuss this question are too concerned with money for bus rides and too little with the need for God.

The real danger is not that the public schools will become sectarian but that fastidious parents will not send their children to public school. An increasingly large number do send their children to private and parochial schools. The independent (private) schools are not only for the rich and fashionable but for children whose parents object to a materialistic, amoral education. They want their children to learn not only about the amoeba but also about the Beatitudes. It is a question of moral standards.

Unfortunately, while the attack is being made on religion—every kind of religion—with increasing force, the children of God are divided into quarreling, bickering sects who hate each other, denounce each .other, .discriminate .against each other. They have forgotten that Christ taught:

". . .This is my commandment: that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. . ."

And also, He said:

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy.' But I say unto you, 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you". . .

But few of those, Christians some of them call themselves, pay heed to this counsel. They fret and fume over school lunches and who shall get them out of the taxpayer's money, but they do not worry about the poison that is daily being poured into the minds of their own children, poisons that have already produced an unmeasurable debasement of man in Europe and projects here a society that knows no better guide than the rule of reason and necessity, the passion for self-satisfaction and indulgence.

Isaiah cried out:

"Woe to the multitude of many people.

Which make a noise like the noise of the seas;

And to the rushing of nations, That make a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters!"

This is not a problem for lawyers and doctors of philosophy. It is the obligation of every parent to protect his own child, to guard it, to nurture its spirit as well as its body, to make it as strong morally as physically. That obligation can be passed on to no one—surely not to the State. To the State, the child, as the person, is a statistical entity to be counted; to the parent, the child is the fulfillment of man's destiny as a moral being.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Ignorant People

Ignorant people are not to be pitied, but encouraged—encouraged to know and to learn. Oscar Wilde in his book "De Profundis," said this: "Like all poetical natures he (Christ) loved ignorant people. He knew that in the soul of one who is ignorant there is always room for a great idea."

None of us know a great deal, though we may have gone to college and lived a great many years. Knowledge is to have learned and distributed—far and wide. There are all too many people, who claim to be educated, who are only stupid! The child, or a grown ignorant person, drinks in knowledge, and is appreciative! Too many claim to own the key to knowledge, but without any idea to what lock it belongs.

People who go around with open minds and open hearts, do not remain igorant for long. They finally become the really educated. And none of us must forget that an educated heart is quite as essential as an educated mind. I would say that the latter is even more important.

There is more room in the mind of an ignorant person for great things than in one that has that mind all cluttered up with non-essentials and useless mental junk. We all have known the latter. As soon as such a one begins to talk, this mental junk starts falling all about, as though an attic had just been emptied!

Ignorant people often become most important people. Wendell Phillips once said that "the biggest brains don't go to Congress." No, they stay at home and carry on the good work of the world.

How very few of our great poets ever went to college. The urge for divine expression, for them, came out of the ignorance of forms and conventions; but forever watered by the free knowledge in nature were those inborn feelings that no curriculum could supply. You are, of course, familiar with the old saying "poets are born, not made." They may be impractical, but not ignorant.

Study the life of Christ and note how he chose his friends and associates—usually from the humbler walks of life—the ignorant fisherfolk and everyday workers. They were the ones who most gladly received him and who took his teachings to their hearts. They had room there for him and his words.

Green Light Or Red Light On Rationing?

With Secretary of Agriculture becoming almost hysterical in demanding meat rationing and proponents of the scheme in Congress giving tongue to the cry, this would seem to be a propitious time to pause and ask them how they are going to enforce this police state plan.

As everyone knows who had anything to do with meat buying several years ago, the black market will take over the instant the clamp goes on. Everyone who could went into the black market and as a result rationing applied only to those few who followed Washington directives and to those who did not have money to buy from black market sources.

The government had the entire wartime set-up for enforcement and it failed miserably to channel the meat business into the rationed groove.

So far as the public knows, plans for enforcing the next rationing order, if it comes, will again be entrusted to officials roaming the land. The scuffle for soft jobs probably is already under way. The result would be the turmoil which prevailed when meat was rationed in the past.

If the government plans to try the old police state scheme of enforcement again, what would be the point of rationing? There would be none and it might as well be forgotten now.

According to all the signs, the nation's meat supply will be short in the period from March through May. For that reason President Truman asks Congress for authority to ration meat—and a lot of other commodities—at his discretion. The majority leaders in Congress are opposed to rationing. Most Republicans fear it would revive the black market, which this country had a taste of during the war and which has overrun the Continent of Europe. Once a black market gains headway, as is more than possible in peacetime, only the well-to-do, as we pointed out above, would be able to afford meat and the entire country would lose the valuable by-products of slaughtering. At the same time, it is Republican policy to keep an open mind on the subject of rationing, should a really critical meat shortage develop.

The meat-rationing bill which Senator Flanders, Vermont Republican, introduced this week departs from the policy of his party. His measure would authorize the Department of Agriculture to set up a complete system of meat-rationing, including the printing of ration-books, and would appropriate $1,000,000 for the purpose. More important, Flanders would authorize the President to submit a detailed rationing program to Congress and this program would go into effect automatically unless both Houses of Congress disapproved it within 30 days. Under this plan, the Administration would prepare a rationing system and Congress would have the responsibility of stopping it within a limited period, if it approved.

Republican policy is to leave with Congress the power to turn on the green light if it wishes. Senator Flanders would give the Administration the green light and would require Congress to turn on the red light to stop something which it had already authorized the Administration to prepare. Judging by this bill, it is hard to understand why Senator Flanders says he does not favor rationing.

Gauging Weapons

How does man's conception of the power of destructive weapons he has invented stack up with his beliefs prior to World War II? The degree of accuracy military men have obtained is of great interest to the civil population.

For years prior to World War II it was held that another war could last only a few days during which all the cities would be destroyed. The war in Spain changed the conception of bombing power. It was proved that a people did not surrender when a city was hammered to pieces and that bombers were little more than long-range artillery. A long bitter war was fought, upsetting many calculations.

Now comes the President's air policy commission with a declaration that the nation must be ready by 1953.

Atomic power is the great fear. People have heard of little else since Hiroshima, and the vision of planes sweeping over the land to obliterate the cities of the nation in one night does not die. Guided missiles also are feared, for they might cross oceans and dump their deadly atomic loads.

Measures of meeting the threat are not revealed, but there are many persons who hold there is no defense.

Germ war probably is not as great a threat. Germs, like gas, hit the attacker as well as the defender.

As in the days before the bomber was tested, no one knows what the effect of atomic weapons used in profusion would be. There is no alternative to maintenance of a strong air force and concentration on invention of both offensive and defensive weapons.

Hope For Europe

There is an old saying that nobody can conquer the Chinese because the teeming millions of China will eventually absorb any invader.

It is easy to become discouraged by the European situation, over which men labor in hopes of finding a solution within a few months or years. History provides the ultimate answer, but decades are required for it to mature.

Atilla the Hun swept Europe down to that seat of the Christian religion, Rome, and everything was ransacked and wrecked. Europe recovered and did not adopt the Hun way of life.

The Goths and Visgoths swept in hordes over the land, but Europe staggered out from under the effects of the invasion. Charlemagne repulsed another fighting horde to free Europe of the invader. In more recent times the entire western part of Europe, except England, was ground under the heel of Napoleon, but later set and again the governments emerged.

Now Russia has overrun the Balkans and other eastern European nations and is sabotaging Allied occupied Germany in hopes she can smash the recovery plan. If Russia extends her aggression, past history indicates that Europe will again emerge from under the conqueror's heel. But it may take a century.

Petrillo for the second time has been declared not guilty, both times by the same judge. But it is understood he will not get a permanent award until at least one more try.

Adrenal Gland Disorder

Years ago—93, to be exact—Thomas Addison described a malady in which the patient developed anemia, general languor, irritability of the stomach, and a peculiar discoloration of the skin. He found that tuberculosis of the adrenal glands was responsible and, in honor of his pioneer work, the condition is still referred to as "Addison's disease."

In only half the cases is tuberculosis responsible. The adrenal structures have many duties but the part involved in Addison's disease (the cortex) helps to keep fluids and various salts of the body in the proper balance. When this function is lost the system is no longer able to retain certain vital chemicals especially sodium, which is one of the chief constituents of table salt. Such an abnormality has so many implications it is little wonder that patients with this ailment exhibit a variety of symptoms.

The disorder begins so gradually that the individuals are hardly aware of its inception. As each day passes, fatigue and weakness become more pronounced and the victim looks just as tired and pepless as he feels. In time, even talking is an effort; by the end of the day the voice actually fails. Meanwhile, appetite wanes and weight is lost.

Before long a friend is likely to comment on the changing color of the skin of the afflicted person. The exposed parts such as the face, neck and hands look dirty, resembling a summer's tan that has failed to leave. In others, a different type of pigmentation occurs, either freckle-like or blue-black areas. The lesions are most noticeable on the membranes covering the inside of the mouth.

To add to the confusion, every now and then attacks of severe nausea, vomiting, or abdominal pain appear. Nervousness and irritability are reflected in a cranky disposition. Examination at this time would reveal little more except low blood pressure.

In Addison's day nothing could be done and ultimately the patient succumbed. Now, there are several tests to identify the condition and hospitalization is required so that the procedures can be done under careful supervision. During the last ten years, treatment has undergone revolutionary changes. The administration of large amounts of table salt, plus a diet low in sodium, helps immeasurably because sodium encourages the excretion of salt.

An advancement came with the discovery of an adrenal cortical hormone. This extract can be injected and controls symptoms in much the same way as insulin does in the diabetic. It is possible to incorporate this glandular substance into a pellet that can be inserted beneath the skin where it takes from 9 to 12 months to be absorbed. The plan eliminates the bother of daily "shots" but is not advised until the individual has been studied carefully to determine the exact requirements. Otherwise too much or too little might be used.

Secretary Of Army Admits He Violates Law; Called On Carpet Re Propaganda; Royall Tries To Sell Cadillac Sedan On Black Market

He has given Attorney General Tom Clark the alternative of either prosecuting Royall or violating his own oath of office by failure to prosecute.

The law in question is Section 201, Title 18 of the U.S. Code which declares it to be a criminal offense to use federal funds to influence legislation before Congress.. The law is clear and categoric. It provides no exceptions or alibis.

Yet Royall has brazenly flouted the law in using more than $50,000 of federal funds to propagandize for military conscription. On top of this, when called before Congress he not only admitted he had violated the law, but said he had "no apologies to make."

First Congressional report on Royall's activities was made July 23 by the House Expenditures Subcommittee, Rep. Forrest Harness of Indiana, Chairman.

How The Army Lobbied

This showed that the Army had spent $36,293 to produce a military-training propaganda film, plus $14,244 of the taxpayers' money to distribute the film. Also, the War Department had paid two civilians —Alan Coutts of New York City and Mrs. Arthur Woods, a former lieutenant colonel with a fine record in the WAC—$25 a day, plus expenses, to tour the country drumming up public support for peacetime conscription.

The report also quoted former Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Petersen as admitting that Mrs. Woods and Mr. Coutts were employed "to sell the (UMT) program to the public with the hope that the public would sell it to the Congress."

"Mrs. Woods admitted that she laid particular emphasis upon the spiritual values of universal military training in her discussions with girl scout groups," the Harness report stated, adding that she had endeavored to interest the National Board of the Girl Scouts of America in showing a plan for peace" at their meetings.

Harness also quoted the following paragraph from an Army-prepared 'outline for veterans' radio panels": "The opposition to universal military training is generally not based on fact, but rather on such generalities as democracy, morals, aggression, education, and pacifism. The chief opponents are parents, church groups, educators, subversive groups, and a large section of the public which does not think."

In other words, the Army was trying to tell veterans what they should say in radio broadcasts supposed to be voluntary efforts of the veterans themselves.

The Harness report further charged that numerous people "of all walks of life" had been flown in military planes at the taxpayers' expense to the Army's UMT experimental camp at Fort Knox, Ky., where they were "conducted on tours of the unit by selected guides, who were able to sell the virtues of the plan under consideration."

Will Justice Department Prosecute?

This Congressional report was approved by the entire committee—both Democrats and Republicans—even including Jim Wadsworth of New York, father-in-law of Stuart Symington, at that time Assistant Secretary of War for Air. It was then sent to the Justice Department.

There it has been gathering dust ever since. Inquiries at the Justice Department last week brought the reply from alleged information officer Leo Cadison that "the FBI is still investigating." That, however, is not true. From other sources, it was ascertained that the FBI finished its report long ago and that it is highly unfavorable to Secretary Royall. It found him guilty of violating the law.

On top of all this, Royall was called before the House Expenditures Subcommittee just a few days ago. This was when he brazenly refused to promise that he would not violate the law in the future.

Royall And Black Market

Secretary Royall also violated the spirit of President Truman's repeated attempts to hold down prices when he advertised his 1947 Cadillac sedan for sale at $4,200 after he had paid only $2,925 for it.

Royall first approached the Cadillac agency in Washington and asked them to buy the car. They offered him the regular list price. To do otherwise would have put them in the black market. But this high-up member of the official Truman family refused to sell for the legal price and advertised his car for sale at $4,200. When this columnist and others called to inquire about the car, somebody got worried and it was hurriedly withdrawn from sale.

Note—The Army and Congress might find it worth while to study the plan of ex-Congressman Kent Keller of Illinois for an American school army—a series of universities for underprivileged boys.

Eisenhower Held Unlikely To Gain By Taft-Dewey Deadlock

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the stage of the Republican Presidential situation just ahead, and continuing until the national convention and perhaps into it, much will depend on a factor of psychology, human nature.

At the meeting of the Republican National Committee in Washington this week, there was a general judgment about the present status of the race for the Presidential nomination. Briefly this was: Governor Dewey and Senator Taft far in the lead, these two having much the largest numbers of delegates in prospect, but with each materially short of a majority. The judgment was that the numbers of prospective delegates for each is at this stage roughly equal, at least without a determining difference between them, though with Governor Dewey likely to have somewhat more.

From this the judgment went into the field of speculation, pointing toward various outcomes. One speculation expressed itself in familiar political terms, a "deadlock" after the early balloting, with Dewey and Taft "killing each other off," and the nomination going to some other possibility.

Wish To Avoid Party Split

Whether there is a "killing each other off" depends much on whether emotional tension may arise during the coming months between the two leaders and their respective lieutenants, delegates and followings. The two principals are not likely to be governed by emotion. It is already apparent that both Taft and Dewey have been pointedly guarded against expressions having the nature of attack on each other, or likely to incite mutual hostility on the part of their respective followings. For this there is good reason in the wish to avoid a party split that might detract from party success in the election.

But lieutenants and managers and minor leaders may not be so prudent as principals. Historically it has been frequent, when there have been two outstanding leaders in a race for a party Presidential nomination, for the following and delegates of each to work themselves into emotions of mutual hostility. To take the present case as a suppositious illustration, Dewey delegates would arrive at a stage in which they would say, "anyone but Taft", and vice versa for Taft delegates. This has accounted, in both parties, for nominations of men who had not figured prominently in the race—the nomination of Harding after Wood and Loudon had killed each other off in the Republican convention of 1920, and of John W. Davis after Smith and McAdoo had killed each other off in the Democratic Convention of 1924.

But to mention this phase of political history is to say it does not exist in the present picture. While there are large groups of leaders and voters for Taft and for Dewey, no one has heard anyone cry "Dewey or die", nor corresponding affirmation in behalf of Taft.

May Have Common Adversary

This lack of strong feeling between the two and their followings, indeed a likelihood of good feeling between them, is increased by the possibility that the two may have, so to speak, a common adversary. If the movement in behalf of General Eisenhower reaches a point where he is a formidable challenger of both Dewey and Taft, the incentive of the two and their followings to more or less cooperate, or at least avoid strong hostility, is obvious.

If it should happen, in the convention, that Dewey and Taft come to the stage of an inconclusive tug of war, with the convention obliged to turn to someone else, the likelihood of Eisenhower being the beneficiary is reduced by a recent memory. In the 1940 convention there arose a condition having some similarity to the present. After Dewey and Taft had been the leaders in the first three ballots, it became apparent or at least it was felt by many delegates, that there was deadlock between them. In this condition the convention turned to one who in the eyes of most of the delegates, was an outsider to the party organization, Wendell Willkie. The experience with Willkie in 1940 was, in the minds of many party leaders, not a happy memory. To say that this memory would work to the detriment of General Eisenhower, and thus to imply comparison between Eisenhower and Willkie, might be unfair. Yet it is a fact that the memory leads party leaders to feel that the Presidential nomination should go to one with orthodox political party experience.

Labor Leader Recognizes Need For Increased Productivity

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—There's a lot of confusion in the news—and much of it can be traced to the superficial way in which President Truman handles his press conferences. Questions are answered without preparation, and the result is a kind of wisecracking reply every now and then from the President which doesn't add to his stature and doesn't help the people understand what their governmental spokesman really is saying.

Thus, a reporter asked the President what he thought of the proposal by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, that the work-week be lengthened from 40 to 45 hours so as to get increased production. Mr. Truman wisecracked back that Mr. Wilson was living in the 1890's.

But just about the same time that the press conference was going on, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor—who may be of advanced years but certainly would not concede that he is living in the 1890's—testified before the Senate banking committee that labor and management should work out a program whereby the work-week should be lengthened from 40 to 45 hours.

Here is a recognition by the head of the nation's largest labor organization of the principle that increased productivity is a way to beat inflation and that the way to get increased production is by lengthening the work - week five hours.

Differences Between Proposals

There are differences, of course, between the Wilson and the Green proposals, but President Truman apparently is so unfamiliar with the whole problem of increased productivity in relation to the shortage of goods that he has treated it indifferently in nearly every public statement on inflation he has made. It is no surprise, therefore, to find him treating Mr. Wilson's suggestion flippantly.

The American people have the idea that a President of the United States gives considerable time to thinking out public problems and at least reads about the fundamentals of national questions so that he can be expected to issue considered statements when asked for comments.

Mr. Truman, however, is so far away from reality himself that he doesn't know that Mr. Wilson's proposal was not intended as a permanent addition to the work-week but simply as an emergency measure to get increased production and bring prices down through enlarged output.

Mr. Green argues that the extra five hours should be paid for at time-and-a-half rates and that the extra hour be tacked on to the work-day. Mr. Wilson had proposed that the five hours be paid for at straight-time. What he was saying, in effect, was that, under present law, manufacturers cannot work extra hours without paying a penalty in costs and that often there was not enough work to put on a full extra eight-hour shift.

Recognizes Importance Of Point

Mr. Green apparently recognizes the importance of this point but his cure is to keep the time-and-a-half rates and not change the law but get the unions to agree to longer days. Even though the law permits a longer work-week at overtime rates, many unions forbid overtime or put a penalty on its use at a rate higher than time-and-a-half.

This correspondent suggested several months ago that a good way to achieve the same result would be to pay straight-time rates for hours over and above present schedules, so that the extra hours beyond those now worked would be compensated at straight-time but with a tax rebate from the government as an incentive. This would mean, for instance, in those factories where 40 hours are now paid at straight-time and two hours of overtime are customarily worked and paid for at time-and-a-half, the present schedule of payment would be retained but any extra hours—above 42, in this instance—would be paid for at straight-time and earn a tax rebate or tax credit.

In any event, the important thing is that there is a revival of discussion of lengthening the work-week. The President has said again and again that inflation happens when there is a shortage of goods and an excess of purchasing power or demand. There is no way to cure shortages except to reduce demand or increase supply. Since the public is against rationing, there is only the course of increased production left. If this is retarded by penalties of higher costs on overtime production, the objective—an increased supply of goods—cannot be attained.

Atheism by Law

DR. NATHAN SCHACHNER has written, for the current issue of the American Jewish Year Book, a learned and interesting article entitled, "Church, State and Education," which shows what the law has been and is concerning religion in the schools of the various parts of the United States. While his summary of the history of this subject is of value, what he misses altogether is that atheism may be taught our children, but not the word of God, not The Bible, not the Psalms, not the Prophets, not the Apostles. Karl Marx is legal in the schools, but not Isaiah or St. Mark. They suffer from Biblical affiliation.

For many, this is a very serious question. They say that religion has no place in the schools. But has anti-religion a place? The real difficulty is that the Catholics object to the St. James Version of The Bible; the Protestants object to the Douai Version; and the Jews object to both.

But does anyone object to a materialistic, biologic interpretation of man's place in society; does anyone complain that his child is being bombarded with an amoral position that man is a product of his environment and that morals are a matter of superstition and social pressures?

In a word, all the talk of Church and State has nothing to do with the fundamental question, which is, what is being done to offset and counteract their corruption by teachers who are atheists and who propagandize an atheistic conception of morals in the public schools?

Dr. Schachner's article does not deal with this at all. Unfortunately, most of those who discuss this question are too concerned with money for bus rides and too little with the need for God.

The real danger is not that the public schools will become sectarian but that fastidious parents will not send their children to public school. An increasingly large number do send their children to private and parochial schools. The independent (private) schools are not only for the rich and fashionable but for children whose parents object to a materialistic, amoral education. They want their children to learn not only about the amoeba but also about the Beatitudes. It is a question of moral standards.

Unfortunately, while the attack is being made on religion—every kind of religion—with increasing force, the children of God are divided into quarreling, bickering sects who hate each other, denounce each .other, .discriminate .against each other. They have forgotten that Christ taught:

". . .This is my commandment: that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. . ."

And also, He said:

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy.' But I say unto you, 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you". . .

But few of those, Christians some of them call themselves, pay heed to this counsel. They fret and fume over school lunches and who shall get them out of the taxpayer's money, but they do not worry about the poison that is daily being poured into the minds of their own children, poisons that have already produced an unmeasurable debasement of man in Europe and projects here a society that knows no better guide than the rule of reason and necessity, the passion for self-satisfaction and indulgence.

Isaiah cried out:

"Woe to the multitude of many people.

Which make a noise like the noise of the seas;

And to the rushing of nations.

That make a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters!"

This is not a problem for lawyers and doctors of philosophy. It is the obligation of every parent to protect his own child, to guard it, to nurture its spirit as well as its body, to make it as strong morally as physically. That obligation can be passed on to no one—surely not to the State. To the State, the child, as the person, is a statistical entity to be counted; to the parent, the child is the fulfillment of man's destiny as a moral being.

Today's Talk

Ignorant People

Ignorant people are not to be pitied, but encouraged—encouraged to know and to learn. Oscar Wilde in his book "De Profundis," said this: "Like all poetical natures he (Christ) loved ignorant people. He knew that in the soul of one who is ignorant there is always room for a great idea."

None of us know a great deal, though we may have gone to college and lived a great many years. Knowledge is to have learned and distributed—far and wide. There are all too many people, who claim to be educated, who are only stupid! The child, or a grown ignorant person, drinks in knowledge, and is appreciative! Too many claim to own the key to knowledge, but without any idea to what lock it belongs.

People who go around with open minds and open hearts, do not remain igorant for long. They finally become the really educated. And none of us must forget that an educated heart is quite as essential as an educated mind. I would say that the latter is even more important.

There is more room in the mind of an ignorant person for great things than in one that has that mind all cluttered up with non-essentials and useless mental junk. We all have known the latter. As soon as such a one begins to talk, this mental junk starts falling all about, as though an attic had just been emptied!

Ignorant people often become most important people. Wendell Phillips once said that "the biggest brains don't go to Congress." No, they stay at home and carry on the good work of the world.

How very few of our great poets ever went to college. The urge for divine expression, for them, came out of the ignorance of forms and conventions; but forever watered by the free knowledge in nature were those inborn feelings that no curriculum could supply. You are, of course, familiar with the old saying "poets are born, not made." They may be impractical, but not ignorant.

Study the life of Christ and note how he chose his friends and associates—usually from the humbler walks of life—the ignorant fisherfolk and everyday workers. They were the ones who most gladly received him and who took his teachings to their hearts. They had room there for him and his words.

Presidential Favorites Of Nation's Farm Voters Surveyed In "Trial"

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 23.—Farmers in states outside the "solid South" give Senator Robert A. Taft's presidential candidacy stronger support than any other population group studied to date in the current Institute series of "trial heats."

In strong contrast to the anti-Taft vote among labor union members, farmers in non-southern regions give the Ohio aspirant a preference today over President Truman. In the three-cornered test Henry A. Wallace polled 7 per cent.

The Senator, however, does not pull as well among this group of voters as two of his main competitors for the Republican nomination, Governor Thomas E. Dewey and General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

An interesting sidelight is that, as a presidential candidate, Henry A. Wallace, former Secretary of Agriculture and a life long student of agricultural problems, is less popular among the farmers than with the general voting population.

Next November the farm vote in key northern states such as New York, Ohio and Illinois may possibly be of decisive importance. With Henry A. Wallace's third-party support drawing votes away from Democrats in their city strongholds, the ballots of the rural population may carry more weight than in most recent national elections.

Farmers throughout the country were interviewed by Institute field reporters and asked how they would vote, if the election was held today and President Truman and Henry A. Wallace were running against: (1) Governor Dewey; (2) General Eisenhower; or (3) Senator Taft.

Gasoline Shortage Hits Tri-State Area

Voluntary rationing of gasoline and fuel oil appeared near last night as the companies operating locally announced a severe shortage in the area and appealed to service station proprietors to close early in an effort to curtail pleasure driving.

One oil firm is alloting gasoline and fuel oil to its dealers on a percentage basis with the cut amounting to about 15 per cent of the supply available in September and October of last year.

A check of local gasoline service stations shows a varied response to the early closing requests with many proprietors declaring they will continue to operate on the present schedules.

The situation as far as fuel oil is concerned, officials of the various companies said, is not as acute here as along the Atlantic Seaboard. There, the officials pointed out, oil is one of the chief heating fuels.

Bay City, Mich., was settled in 1836, incorporated as a village in 1859, and in 1865 chartered as a city.

Police Investigate Death Of Railroader

Baltimore police last night were still investigating the death of Paul Junior Childs, 24, former B. and O. employe who was found dead under a bridge in Baltimore Sunday morning.

Authorities declared they still have not learned if the victim was thrown from the bridge or if he fell. The body was discovered at the foot of the span and reported to authorities by a passerby.

A former Morgantown resident, Childs worked here before being transferred to the Connellsville Division of the B. and O. several months ago.

"The clang of shields," to strike the shield with the blunt end of a spear, was in Ossianic times an indication of war to the death. A bard, when the shield was thus struck, raised the mort-song.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Stop Reasoning With Discontented Wife And Take Firm Stand

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married man 25 years old, have a child a year old.

For quite some time, my wife has been telling me that she hates it in our home with the two of us, and keeps saying she is in love with her first love. But she never told me anything about being in love with someone else until 10 months ago.

I have tried to reason with her and make her happy, but she says she can never be happy until she leaves my house. Do you think it wise for me to tell her to get out, though I love her very much?

"PUZZLED."

Dear "Puzzled":

If you have been providing a good home for your wife and child, and doing everything you can for their happiness, and your wife takes the attitude she does wholly without cause, then I think you had better stop coaxing and reasoning with her and take a firm stand. Some wives need a strong hand, and yours may be one of these.

Naturally I don't mean for you to be domineering or bullying, but simply tell her once and for all that if she doesn't like what you can give her she had better make good her threat and leave; that you can get along fine without her constant complaining. This might surprise her so much that it would solve the problem.

Let Romance Wait

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 15. There are two boys whom I'm very fond of. One claims he loves me, yet when I'm not with him, he tells the same thing to another girl.

The second boy really loves me, and I know for a fact that he doesn't cheat. I love him, too, but when I see the other one who does cheat on me, I love him also.

They are both swell kids, good-looking and clean-cut. My girl friends keep telling me that the first boy is just giving me a line, but I don't believe them. What do you think. I'll do whatever you say.

"CONFUSED."

Dear "Confused":

What I think is that you are being very silly. It's silly, in the first place, for a girl your age to be talking about "love," and it's silly, in the second place, not to recognize a "line" when you hear one, and it's silly, in the third place to tell me a boy "cheats' 'and then, in the next breath, to call him a "swell kid."

You tell me you'll do whatever I say, but I doubt if you will. Because what I say is for you to stop talking and thinking about love and cheating, and get a little sense into your head. Put you mind on your friends, and your school studies and activities, and your hobbies and other interests, and let romance alone until you are older and wiser.

One oil firm is alloting gasoline and fuel oil to its dealers on a percentage basis with the cut amounting to about 15 per cent of the supply available in September and October of last year.

A check of local gasoline service stations shows a varied response to the early closing requests with many proprietors declaring they will continue to operate on the present schedules.

The situation as far as fuel oil is concerned, officials of the various companies said, is not as acute here as along the Atlantic Seaboard. There, the officials pointed out, oil is one of the chief heating fuels.

Bay City, Mich., was settled in 1836, incorporated as a village in 1859, and in 1865 chartered as a city.

Police Investigate Death Of Railroader

Baltimore police last night were still investigating the death of Paul Junior Childs, 24, former B. and O. employe who was found dead under a bridge in Baltimore Sunday morning.

Authorities declared they still have not learned if the victim was thrown from the bridge or if he fell. The body was discovered at the foot of the span and reported to authorities by a passerby.

A former Morgantown resident, Childs worked here before being transferred to the Connellsville Division of the B. and O. several months ago.

"The clang of shields," to strike the shield with the blunt end of a spear, was in Ossianic times an indication of war to the death. A bard, when the shield was thus struck, raised the mort-song.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Stop Reasoning With Discontented Wife And Take Firm Stand

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married man 25 years old, have a child a year old.

For quite some time, my wife has been telling me that she hates it in our home with the two of us, and keeps saying she is in love with her first love. But she never told me anything about being in love with someone else until 10 months ago.

I have tried to reason with her and make her happy, but she says she can never be happy until she leaves my house. Do you think it wise for me to tell her to get out, though I love her very much?

"PUZZLED."

Dear "Puzzled":

If you have been providing a good home for your wife and child, and doing everything you can for their happiness, and your wife takes the attitude she does wholly without cause, then I think you had better stop coaxing and reasoning with her and take a firm stand. Some wives need a strong hand, and yours may be one of these.

Naturally I don't mean for you to be domineering or bullying, but simply tell her once and for all that if she doesn't like what you can give her she had better make good her threat and leave; that you can get along fine without her constant complaining. This might surprise her so much that it would solve the problem.

Let Romance Wait

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 15. There are two boys whom I'm very fond of. One claims he loves me, yet when I'm not with him, he tells the same thing to another girl.

The second boy really loves me, and I know for a fact that he doesn't cheat. I love him, too, but when I see the other one who does cheat on me, I love him also.

They are both swell kids, good-looking and clean-cut. My girl friends keep telling me that the first boy is just giving me a line, but I don't believe them. What do you think. I'll do whatever you say.

"CONFUSED."

Dear "Confused":

What I think is that you are being very silly. It's silly, in the first place, for a girl your age to be talking about "love," and it's silly, in the second place, not to recognize a "line" when you hear one, and it's silly, in the third place to tell me a boy "cheats' 'and then, in the next breath, to call him a "swell kid."

You tell me you'll do whatever I say, but I doubt if you will. Because what I say is for you to stop talking and thinking about love and cheating, and get a little sense into your head. Put you mind on your friends, and your school studies and activities, and your hobbies and other interests, and let romance alone until you are older and wiser.

CHAINS

These hands might have painted the world's greatest masterpiece. These hands might have played faultlessly the most difficult concerto. These hands might have mixed a compound that would destroy disease. These hands might have been raised in blessing over a trusting mankind.

Instead they are chained. Somewhere, somehow, they failed. Perhaps they reached over a counter and steathily snatched a jewel. Perhaps they searched a safe and took what other hands had worked for. Perhaps they held the gun that wiped out a life. Somewhere they went wrong. Somewhere they failed.

Hands do not act by themselves. Personalities control them — personalities swayed by impulses and convictions, good and bad. The Church, your Church, is waiting to guide hands, minds, hearts and lives. Here good impulses, right convictions are born and nurtured. Here, in God's House, hands learn to move aright to find life's work, unchained and triumphant.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

CHAINS

These hands might have painted the world's greatest masterpiece. These hands might have played faultlessly the most difficult concerto. These hands might have mixed a compound that would destroy disease. These hands might have been raised in blessing over a trusting mankind.

Instead they are chained. Somewhere, somehow, they failed. Perhaps they reached over a counter and steathily snatched a jewel. Perhaps they searched a safe and took what other hands had worked for. Perhaps they held the gun that wiped out a life. Somewhere they went wrong. Somewhere they failed.

Hands do not act by themselves. Personalities control them — personalities swayed by impulses and convictions, good and bad. The Church, your Church, is waiting to guide hands, minds, hearts and lives. Here good impulses, right convictions are born and nurtured. Here, in God's House, hands learn to move aright to find life's work, unchained and triumphant.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday and read your Bible daily

Fort Hill Cracks AHS 44-Game Winning Streak, 41 To 34

Ridgeley Notches Eighth, Thumps Fort Ashby, 51-19

Moss, Brehany Account For Thirty-One Points

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

The Ridgeley Blackhawks smashed through the Fort Ashby Eagles with machine-like precision to rack up a 51 to 19 victory before some 500-spectators in a Potomac Valley Conference tilt at Ridgeley last night.

The Hawks led all the way in rolling to their eighth straight triumph of the season without defeat and their third straight in the PVC.

Bill Brehany dumped in three quick baskets in the first minute and half of play and the Hawks went on to pile up a 15-0 margin before Jimmy Davis converted at the foul line to break the ice for the Eagles. Coach Jesse Riggleman's crew went on to lead 17-3 at the quarter, 35-8 at halftime and 45-14 as the final period began.

The Hawk second team took over in the last quarter and outscored the Fort 6 to 5.

In playing one of their best games of the season the Hawks were led by big Joe Moss's 16-points and Bill Brehany's 15. Dale Blauch topped Fort Ashby with nine markers.

The defeat was the third for Fort Ashby in nine season starts. Lineups:

Lujack May Sign Bears' Contract In Chicago Today

McKeever May Revive Now Defunct Rockets

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—(AP)—Apparently maneuvering for position in a battle for pro football publicity, the Chicago Bears today hinted they would sign Quarterback Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame tomorrow and the Chicago Rockets indicated they would assign coast-to-coast Coach Ed McKeever to revive the now-defunct club before Feb. 1.

Owner-Coach George Halas of the National Football League's mighty Bears announced today that a press conference would be held tomorrow noon, presumably to announce Lujack's signing by the Bears.

Lujack, according to a Chicago Tribune story last week, already has signed with the Bears at $18,000 annually for three years and the announcement has been delayed to work up a head of publicity steam.

Halas said he had failed to reach Lujack for a final contract conference today and emphasized that the Irish star had not yet signed.

"We'll meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in my office and settle one way or another," declared Halas. "If he doesn't sign, we'll still have the party and let Johnny explain his decision. I'm just dizzy from trying to tell questioners what the score is on Johnny's pro career."

On the All-America Conference side of the street, R. E. Garn, a Chicago stock broker and Rocket spokesman, admitted today he had "talked terms in a general way" with McKeever, now San Francisco University coach, who previously touched coaching bases at Cornell, Notre Dame, Boston College and Texas Tech, being head man at Cornell and Notre Dame.

At San Francisco, McKeever—just returned from a Chicago visit and a two-day conference with Garn—emphasized that he had "signed nothing," but it was understood he had a year's salary as prospective Rocket coach placed in escrow and his appointment would be formally disclosed when new Rocket ownership is divulged.

Although Garn is depicted as the organizer of a syndicate which he hopes will obtain the "frozen" Chicago franchise from the All-America conference before Feb. 1, he asserted today that he did not "feel qualified" to head the new management, but would be "interested in a minor way, if I can scrape up any money."

22 Nations Challenge For The Davis Cup

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—With Jack Kramer, the United States ace, deserting the amateurs for the pros, 22 nations have decided to challenge for the Davis Cup which the U. S. defended successfully against Australia last summer.

Walter M. Hall, chairman of the Davis Cup committee of management, said today, nine days before the Jan. 31 deadline, that at least two additional entries were expected. The official draw will be held between Feb. 1 and Feb. 10.

SPORTS GRILL

by

Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (INS) — Madison Square Garden no longer stages those crazy six-day bike grinds but instead they put on something called basketball.

If you haven't seen a basketball game in recent years you wouldn't recognize the game now staged under that label.

This cage game with the new look reminds us of the jams in the old bike grinds with everybody rushing madly hither and you and nobody getting anywhere.

There is no finesse in this modern version of Dr. Jim Naismith's brainchild. And even less defense. Everything is sacrified to offense and the scores rolled up by these crane-legged goons in truly amazing.

Where 25 points was considered a big score in the old days, these seven footers sometimes now run up more than a 100 points in a game.

The busiest men in the place are the official scorer and the whistle-tooting referee.

The game itself as now played is goofy enough but the constant whistle-blowing makes it a nightmare to anyone with ordinary eardrums.

In one recent college doubleheader in the Garden there were 122 personals fouls called!

Neat shot-making, nifty combinations and nice control of the ball appear to be a lost art.

This has led to a demand for a change in the rules. And five proposed changes will be presented to the rules committee.

These are (1) a delayed whistle on a foul until the play is completed; (2) clarification of the kicking rule; (3) offensive team to retain the ball after a foul shot; (4) one point to be scored for a tap-in basket; and (5) the official to handle the ball after each score.

The thing that gripes us most is to see a seven-footer nonchalantly reach up and tap in a basket. That kind of score requires as much skill and effort as a bald-headed man combing his hair.

The average-size player has to be remarkably skillful to begin to compete with these giants and it is has been suggested that the hoop be moved out a foot or two from the backboard as an equalizer.

We can't see that would be much help so we offer another suggestion. Why not have a blue line as in hockey say 10 feet out from the backboard with a rule that no shot could be made anywhere within that zone.

That would certainly cut down the scoring and would bar those senseless tap-ins.

Zale Scores Knockout In Grand Rapids Bout

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 23 (INS)—Ex-middleweight King Tony Zale hit the comeback trial in grand style tonight by catapulting Al Turner of California out of the ring for a knockout in the fifth round of their scheduled ten-round bout in Grand Rapids Armory.

Zale, the 31-year-old Gary, Ind., fighter who yielded his crown to Rock Graziano in his last fight, was in unquestionable command of the situation from the beginning.

Campers' Late Rally Fails To Pull Game Out Of Fire

Sentinels Cop Fifth Straight In League

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A fighting Allegany High School quint caught fire in the final period with a 13-point rally that threatened to catch the high-flying Fort Hill Sentinels before bowing to the Scarlet and White team by the score of 41-34, in a City series thriller last night on the Fort Hill floor.

Approximately 1,100 fans were on their feet throughout the last exciting eight minutes of the game to witness the snapping of a 44-game winning streak by the Campers in WMI League competition.

The loss was the third of the season for Allegany and the first in five games in league play. The Campers have won six contests.

Sentinels Lead City

Fort Hill, in racking up their 12th conquest in 14 starts this year, kept their loop record spotless and took the lead in City series with two victories and no defeats.

Trailing 35-21 at the start of the final canto, Allegany began to look like Alco quints of old under the tutelege of the veteran Coach Walter L. "Hill" Bowers, and rallied to close the gap to five points before finally bowing to the speedier and more aggressive Sentinels.

Gary Moler's set heave in the fourth period gave the Scarlet and White aggregation its biggest margin of the game at 16 points, 37-21, with 6:30 remaining in the game.

Bob Lookabaugh, slim sophomore forward for the Alcomen, then netted a foul, Jim "Sonny" Lease connected for a layup after dribbling the entire length of the floor and came back moments later to drop a sensational shot from outside through the netting to bring the count to 37-26 at the automatic time out with 3:00 minutes to go.

Don Lilya and Ronnie Sterne hooped charity tosses at the 15-foot stripe and Sterne dropped a twin-pointer through from the side before Lilya tipped in a rebound to make the Camper streak 11 straight points. With the score 37-32 and 1:25 remaining Jimmy Manges broke the spell for the winners and dropped a set shot through from outside the foul circle. Lilya came back with a one-hander from the side to again bring the Campers within five points of Mentor John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's charges. However, in attempting to rush the ball handler, Allegany left Jim Hardinger wide open under the hoop and the tall center tallied a layup seconds before the final gun to end the scoring.

Sentinels Outfight Losers

In defeating Allegany for the first time since 1943, the Sentinels outfought and out-ran the taller Campobello five in the first three quarters to take a commanding lead that enabled them to hang on for the victory.

The Cavanaughmen jumped off to a 16-9 lead in the initial stanza, added a point to their margin at 23-15 at the half and then outscored the Blue and White cagers 12-6 in the third canto to lead 35-21 as the stanza closed.

Allegany appeared lethargic in the early part of the tilt, permitting the faster Sentinels to steal the ball on numerous occasions and leaving the Scarlet and White set-shot artists limitless time to set themselves, aim and fire away with devastating accuracy at the basket.

Moler Opens Scoring

Moler opened the scoring with a tip-in moments after the opening whistle and added two set heaves to give Fort Hill a 6-0 lead before Allegany broke into the scoring column on Lookabaugh's two-handed shot from the side.

Sterne's layup and Lookabaugh's foul made it 6-5 before Charley Lattimer, the city's top scorer, dumped five consecutive points through the nets to give Fort Hill a lead that was never relinquished.

Lilya, Lookabaugh and Lease played outstanding floor game for the Campers while Dean, Lattimer and Moler were Fort Hill's best bets.

The three Cavanaguh cagers paced the Sentinel attack with 33 points among them, while Lilya, tall, lanky pivot man for Allegany, topped the Alco team with 11 markers. The lineups:

By JOHN L. BORCHERT

The Ridgeley Blackhawks smashed through the Fort Ashby Eagles with machine-like precision to rack up a 51 to 19 victory before some 500 spectators in a Potomac Valley Conference tilt at Ridgeley last night.

The Hawks led all the way in rolling to their eighth straight triumph of the season without defeat and their third straight in the PVC.

Bill Brehany dumped in three quick baskets in the first minute and half of play and the Hawks went on to pile up a 15-0 margin before Jimmy Davis converted at the foul line to break the ice for the Eagles. Coach Jesse Riggleman's crew went on to lead 17-3 at the quarter, 35-8 at halftime and 45-14 as the final period began.

The Hawk second team took over in the last quarter and outscored the Fort 6 to 5.

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (INS) — Madison Square Garden no longer stages those crazy six-day bike grinds but instead they put on something called basketball.

If you haven't seen a basketball game in recent years you wouldn't recognize the game now staged under that label.

This cage game with the new look reminds us of the jams in the old bike grinds with everybody rushing madly hither and you and nobody getting anywhere.

There is no finesse in this modern version of Dr. Jim Naismith's brainchild. And even less defense. Everything is sacrified to offense and the scores rolled up by these crane-legged goons in truly amazing.

Where 25 points was considered a big score in the old days, these seven footers sometimes now run up more than a 100 points in a game.

The busiest men in the place are the official scorer and the whistle-tooting referee.

The game itself as now played is goofy enough but the constant whistle-blowing makes it a nightmare to anyone with ordinary eardrums.

In one recent college doubleheader in the Garden there were 122 personals fouls called!

Neat shot-making, nifty combinations and nice control of the ball appear to be a lost art.

This has led to a demand for a change in the rules. And five proposed changes will be presented to the rules committee.

These are (1) a delayed whistle on a foul until the play is completed; (2) clarification of the kicking rule; (3) offensive team to retain the ball after a foul shot; (4) one point to be scored for a tap-in basket; and (5) the official to handle the ball after each score.

The thing that gripes us most is to see a seven-footer nonchalantly reach up and tap in a basket. That kind of score requires as much skill and effort as a bald-headed man combing his hair.

The average-size player has to be remarkably skillful to begin to compete with these giants and it is has been suggested that the hoop be moved out a foot or two from the backboard as an equalizer.

We can't see that would be much help so we offer another suggestion. Why not have a blue line as in hockey say 10 feet out from the backboard with a rule that no shot could be made anywhere within that zone.

That would certainly cut down the scoring and would bar those senseless tap-ins.

Lujack May Sign Bears' Contract In Chicago Today

McKeever May Revive Now Defunct Rockets

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—(AP)—Apparently maneuvering for position in a battle for pro football publicity, the Chicago Bears today hinted they would sign Quarterback Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame tomorrow and the Chicago Rockets indicated they would assign coast-to-coast Coach Ed McKeever to revive the now-defunct club before Feb. 1.

Owner-Coach George Halas of the National Football League's mighty Bears announced today that a press conference would be held tomorrow noon, presumably to announce Lujack's signing by the Bears.

Lujack, according to a Chicago Tribune story last week, already has signed with the Bears at $18,000 annually for three years and the announcement has been delayed to work up a head of publicity steam.

Halas said he had failed to reach Lujack for a final contract conference today and emphasized that the Irish star had not yet signed.

"We'll meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in my office and settle one way or another," declared Halas. "If he doesn't sign, we'll still have the party and let Johnny explain his decision. I'm just dizzy from trying to tell questioners what the score is on Johnny's pro career."

On the All-America Conference side of the street, R. E. Garn, a Chicago stock broker and Rocket spokesman, admitted today he had "talked terms in a general way" with McKeever, now San Francisco University coach, who previously touched coaching bases at Cornell, Notre Dame, Boston College and Texas Tech, being head man at Cornell and Notre Dame.

At San Francisco, McKeever—just returned from a Chicago visit and a two-day conference with Garn—emphasized that he had "signed nothing," but it was understood he had a year's salary as prospective Rocket coach placed in escrow and his appointment would be formally disclosed when new Rocket ownership is divulged.

Although Garn is depicted as the organizer of a syndicate which he hopes will obtain the "frozen" Chicago franchise from the All-America Conference before Feb. 1, he asserted today that he did not "feel qualified" to head the new management, but would be "interested in a minor way, if I can scrape up any money."

22 Nations Challenge For The Davis Cup

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—With Jack Kramer, the United States ace, deserting the amateurs for the pros, 22 nations have decided to challenge for the Davis Cup which the U. S. defended successfully against Australia last summer.

Walter M. Hall, chairman of the Davis Cup committee of management, said today, nine days before the Jan. 31 deadline, that at least two additional entries were expected. The official draw will be held between Feb. 1 and Feb. 10.

Penn State Star Beats Ross And MacMitchell

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (AP) — Gerry Karver of Penn State came from behind on the last lap to win the mile run at the Philadelphia Inquirer indoor track and field games tonight by two yards in 4:16.3 before an estimated 10,500 fans at Convention Hall.

Browning Ross of Villanova, winner of the Washington Star mile earlier this month in 4:13.7 saved second place by a yard over Leslie MacMitchell of the New York Athletic Club, who trailed the field until the 11th lap but waited too long to make his kick.

Barney Ewell, former Penn State star from Lancaster, Pa., who holds the national outdoor 200-meter title, led all the way in winning the Charles Paddock Memorial 300-yard dash for the second straight year with a clocking of 32.3 seconds, eight-tenths better than the meet record he set in 1947.

Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace, America's premier timber-topper, won the 50-yard high hurdles. Dillard led all the way but beat Ed Dugger of the Dayton (Ohio) Athletic Club, to the tape by only half a step in 6.4 seconds.

National Champion Ed Conwell of the Jersey City Department of Recreation, equalled his own meet record of 5.2 seconds in capturing the 50-yard dash for the second straight year.

Tendler's Son Picks Baseball Over Boxing

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23 (AP) — Lew Tendler's 19-year-old son, Milt, signed a baseball contract today and the former lightweight boxing contender said the lad was picking the diamond over the ring because "his mother wants him to keep his good looks."

Blonde, curley-haired Milt had about the same version:

"My mother can't see fighting—one fighter in the family was enough."

Young Tendler will play the outfield for the Americus, Ga., team in the Class D Georgia-Florida League.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 23 (AP) — Three of golfdom's classiest performers tonight were tied for the lead at the end of the first round of the $10,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament, each recording six-under-par 65's around the Phoenix Country Club course.

Going into the second round of the 72-hole tourney in joint possession of the lead will be Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, Jim Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Bobby Locke, Johannesburg, South Africa.

Ferrier bogied the par four sixth hole wasting two shots when his drive went into the trees to the right of the fairway.

Demaret had no trouble sinking long putts for most of his birdies.

Wilfred Wehrle, Reynolds, Ky., and Frank Stranahan, Toledo, both posted score of 69 to pace the amateur entrants in the events.

Campers' Late Rally Fails To Pull Game Out Of Fire

Sentinels Cop Fifth Straight In League

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

A fighting Allegany High School quint caught fire in the final period with a 13-point rally that threatened to catch the high-flying Fort Hill Sentinels before bowing to the Scarlet and White team by the score of 41-34, in a City series thriller last night on the Fort Hill floor.

Approximately 1,100 fans were on their feet throughout the last exciting eight minutes of the game to witness the snapping of a 44-game winning streak by the Campers in WMI League competition.

The loss was the third of the season for Allegany and the first in five games in league play. The Campers have won six contests.

Sentinels Lead City

Fort Hill, in racking up their 12th conquest in 14 starts this year, kept their loop record spotless and took the lead in City series with two victories and no defeats.

Trailing 35-21 at the start of the final canto, Allegany began to look like Alco quints of old under the tutelege of the veteran Coach Walter L. "Hill" Bowers, and rallied to close the gap to five points before finally bowing to the speedier and more aggressive Sentinels.

Gary Moler's set heave in the fourth period gave the Scarlet and White aggregation its biggest margin of the game at 16 points, 37-21, with 6:30 remaining in the game.

Bob Lookabaugh, slim sophomore forward for the Alcomen, then netted a foul, Jim "Sonny" Lease connected for a layup after dribbling the entire length of the floor and came back moments later to drop a sensational shot from outside through the netting to bring the count to 37-26 at the automatic time out with 3:00 minutes to go.

Don Lilya and Ronnie Sterne hooped charity tosses at the 15-foot stripe and Sterne dropped a twin-pointer through from the side before Lilya tipped in a rebound to make the Camper streak 11 straight points. With the score 37-32 and 1:25 remaining Jimmy Manges broke the spell for the winners and dropped a set shot through from outside the foul circle. Lilya came back with a one-hander from the side to again bring the Campers within five points of Mentor John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's charges. However, in attempting to rush the ball handler, Allegany left Jim Hardinger wide open under the hoop and the tall center tallied a layup seconds before the final gun to end the scoring.

Sentinels Outfight Losers

In defeating Allegany for the first time since 1943, the Sentinels outfought and out-ran the taller Campobello five in the first three quarters to take a commanding lead that enabled them to hang on for the victory.

The Cavanaughmen jumped off to a 16-9 lead in the initial stanza, added a point to their margin at 23-15 at the half and then outscored the Blue and White cagers 12-6 in the third canto to lead 35-21 as the stanza closed.

Allegany appeared lethargic in the early part of the tilt, permitting the faster Sentinels to steal the ball on numerous occasions and leaving the Scarlet and White set-shot artists limitless time to set themselves, aim and fire away with devastating accuracy at the basket.

Moler Opens Scoring

Moler opened the scoring with a tip-in moments after the opening whistle and added two set heaves to give Fort Hill a 6-0 lead before Allegany broke into the scoring column on Lookabaugh's two-handed shot from the side.

Sterne's layup and Lookabaugh's foul made it 6-5 before Charley Lattimer, the city's top scorer, dumped five consecutive points through the nets to give Fort Hill a lead that was never relinquished.

Lilya, Lookabaugh and Lease played outstanding floor game for the Campers while Dean, Lattimer and Moler were Fort Hill's best bets.

Allegany	G	F	Pts.
Lookabaugh, f	1	3-4	5

Calvert Hall To Play LaSalle Cagers In Centennial Feature

Baltimore Quint Faces Explorers Here Sunday

Ridgeley To Invade Fort Hill Tuesday

Calvert Hall's centenary basketball game with LaSalle High School, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Christian Brothers in the United States, will be staged here tomorrow at 3 o'clock on SS. Peter and Paul court.

The Baltimore team is coached by Joe Mellendick, former outfielder of the Baltimore Orioles, and won three of its first starts. Wins were scored over Veterans' Institute, Dundalk High School and Boys' Latin High School. The Cardinals lost to Towson Catholic and Johns Hopkins Freshmen.

Murphy Leads Cards

Tommy Murphy, a three - year varsity man is captain of the team representing the oldest Christian Brothers school in the United States. Marty Walters, 6 - foot - 4 freshman is regarded as a classy set shot artist, Tommy Scott is the team's play-maker and Joe Carroll is the best guard. Other members of the squad are William Lowman, Anthony Pistorio, Francis Woods, Hamilton Ruth, Harry Cook and John Vicchio and Jack Scannell, all-Maryland fullback and end during the 1947 season.

Richard Craig, Donald Nichols and Andrew Pyle are managers of the team and Brother Xavier, F.S.C., is moderator.

Tomorrow's game will be the 12th of the season for LaSalle. The Explorers have won seven and lost four.

Clifton Van Roby and Clifford Fearer will officiate.

There will be a preliminary game at 2 p. m., between the Cumberland Loyal Order of Moose and Frostburg Merchants.

AHS To Play LaSalle

LaSalle's second big game of the week at home is set for Friday night when the Explorers entertain Allegany High School. It will be the 54th meeting of the schools since the series started in 1921 and the score stands 33 to 20 in favor of the Campers.

Undefeated Ridgeley High School will be after its ninth straight win of the season Tuesday when it plays Fort Hill's Sentinels at Fort Hill. It looks like Ridgeley's biggest test to date as Fort Hill is undefeated on its home floor, winning nine in a row there.

Elk Garden's high - flying team faces a real test on Tuesday when it attempts to defeat Fort Ashby on the latter's floor in a P.V.C. game and on the same evening Keyser and Beall collide in what looms as a good attraction at Frostburg.

Fort Hill Invades Keyser

Green, Walter Mackay, Mrs. Charles McFarland and J. Fred Ash. Two of the past presidents, Mrs. Roland Lammert and Earl G. Metger, are deceased.

Mrs. Katherine Arnold Dies

Mrs. Katherine Arnold, 76, widow of Thomas Arnold, Mt. Savage, died Friday morning in Allegany County Infirmary, Cumberland, after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Arnold, who resided in this section all of her life, spent several months as a patient at Miners' Hospital before going to the Cumberland institution. At one time, she operated Beall's Mansion boarding house and the old St. Cloud Hotel here.

Born at Borden Shaft, Mrs. Arnold was a daughter of the late James and Katherine Shields and the last surviving member of her immediate family. She belonged to St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Mt Savage.

She is survived by three nephews, William Flynn, Washington; William Orrick, Baltimore, and Edward Shields, Mt. Savage.

The body is at the Hafer Funeral Home here.

McKenzie Funeral Sunday

A funeral service for Mrs. McKenzie, wife of W. H. McKenzie, Finzel, who died Thursday evening at the home of her son, Robert McKenzie, 2 Park Street, will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Methodist Church at Johnsons, Garrett County, with a minister of the Seventh Day Adventists officiating. Burial will be in the church yard.

Besides the survivors whose names already have been published, Mrs. McKenzie leaves a brother, Albert Machin, Meyersdale, Pa.

Burn's Life In Movie

"Auld Lang Syne," a sound motion picture based on the life of Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, will be presented tonight at 7:30 in the annex of First Presbyterian Church.

The musical score includes many of the songs based on Burns' poems, such as "Auld Lang Syne," "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," "Comin' Through the Rye."

The film has been brought to Frostburg through the efforts of William J. Elvin and Bart J. Lyons, natives of Dumfries and Glasgow, Scotland, respectively.

The program will include the singing of two Scottish songs by Arthur Thomas, choir director of First Methodist Church.

A free-will offering will be taken for the benefit of First Presbyterian Church's young people's group, Westminister Fellowship.

Semester Begins February 3

First semester at State Teachers Collegs closes Wednesday, January 28, and the second semester opens Tuesday, February 3. The college will admit new students, either freshmen or students with advanced standing, the second semester. Such students should register not later than Monday, February 2, in either the Junior College program or the Teacher Education program.

The number of young men who are registering for the Teachers Education program for junior high school teaching is viewed as most encouraging. The teaching profession needs men as well as women. The college now has enrolled a few more men than women.

The following students have completed their registration for the second semester:

Charles H. Bowman, McHenry; Helen June Day, Picardy; John J. Dermio, 130 Mt. Pleasant Street, Frostburg; Bernard R. Everson, 409 Walnut Street, Cumberland; William Lee Fazenbaker, 25 East Main Street, Lonaconing; Deloros R. Fletcher, 909 Fayette Street, Cumberland; Larry R. Haines, Box 333, Romney, W. Va.; Charles William Kittering, 525 Caroline Street, Cumberland; John D. Miller, RFD 5, Cumberland; Thomas P. Staup, Watercliffe Street, Lonaconing; William Buser, Route 1, Oldtown; Edward W. Stakem, 16 East Main Street, Lonaconing; Robert J. Doyle, Box 71, East Main Street, Lonaconing.

Other persons interested in attending college should call Frostburg 296.

Young People's Day Sunday

First Presbyterian Church will observe "Young People's Day" at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning.

David Adams, Jr., will read the Scripture lesson and William Lemmert will lead in the responsive reading; Anna Evans (soprano) and Ina Nie Watson (contralto) will sing a duet, "Savour, In Thy Presence," by Stairs; and James T. Taylor, Jr., and Henry Schuthheis will serve as ushers. The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Joan Menser, will sing the anthem, "Savour, Teach Me," with the organ accompaniments played by Mrs. James T. Taylor.

"Young People's Day" is an annual observance of the Presbyterian denomination held on the last Sunday of January.

Frostburg Briefs

The Frostburg Church of the Brethren entertained their pastor, Rev. Oscar Bowman, and family with a surprise pound party. The program included music, readings, talks and group singing. Following the program, a social hour was held in the social room of the church. Refreshments were served by ladies of the church.

The Progressive Pals of the Church of the Brethren will meet Sunday at 3:30 p. m. at the church parsonage. This will be the first meeting of 1948 and the attendance of all Pals is being urged. Assisting Mrs. Oscar Bowman in serving will be Mrs. Eliza Powell and Mrs. Gladys Houser.

Frostburg Chapter No. 221, Women of the Moose, meeting Thursday evening, donated $10 to the March of Dimes campaign. The program consisted of a vocal duet by Anna Ruth Robeson and Ina Lee Robeson; a reading by Mrs. Laura Hetz and a talk on "Friendship" by Miss Mary Nicht.

The oquassa trout is a small trout of the Rangely group of lakes in western Maine, dark blue, with small red spots, which are usually confined to the sides. This is one of the most beautiful of the trout.

Commerce Group To Hold Annual Election Soon

By GEORGE H. HANST

OAKLAND.—The Board of Directors of the Mt. Top Chamber of Commerce are making plans for the annual election of members of the board, and will act on the resignation of Charles L. Briner, as president, it was announced.

Letters have been mailed out this week to the 83 members, informing them of the election, and including a primary ballot upon which they will designate nine members. According to the regulations the high 18 will be declared nominated and their names placed on the official ballot for election. Ballots are to be returned to W. O. Davis, secretary.

Present members of the Board include Mr. Briner, Wilbur Close, Mrs. Victoria Ingram, Emeric Dusic, Arthur Humbertson, Lewis R. Jones, Thurl Tower and Walter E. Dawson.

Questionnaires which are calculated to help make business better also will be sent out in the near future by the Chamber, Mr. Davis said. These questionnaires were received through the Pathfinder magazine, and when filled in are to be returned to Mr. Davis. They do not need to be signed. The questionnaires ask about buying habits and how important various things are in attracting a person to a store.

Floor Show Planned

Further plans on the floor show being arranged by the Oakland Committee of the March of Dimes campaign, were announced by Charles L. Briner, chairman.

The dance will be held Saturday evening, January 31, at the William-James hotel, for the benefit of the infantile paralysis fund. Admission will be $2.50 per couple and no stags, Mr. Briner said.

The floor show will be presented at 11 o'clock and will include the Smith Triplets of Cumberland, Wilda, Wilma and Willa, piano and accordion artists; Donald Keister, Grantsville, youthful cornetist; Mrs. William Ellinghaus, dancing; William Gibson, at the piano, and the initial appearance of the Four Fifths Quartet. Identity of the members of the quartet is being withheld until that night. Regis Kerins and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

Scholarship Available

F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, has received a letter from Louise E. Lamborn, headmaster of the McDonogh school near Baltimore, stating that some scholarships in that institution may be available next fall to a number of promising students from the counties of Maryland.

The age limits are between 12th and 16th birthdays, or a boy must have completed the sixth grade. Mr. Lamborn emphasized that they wanted boys of character who would take advantage of the opportunity offered.

Scholarships are available under competitive system. Mr. Rathbun has notified school principals and supervising teachers to be on the lookout for boys whom they could recommend.

P.-T.A. To Meet

A round table discussion of the United Nations, under the specific topic, "We the People," will be the feature of the next Oakland High School Parent-Teacher Association meeting, to be held Thursday, February 12, in the school auditorium.

Civic Club Meets

"The new look" in women's styles and fabrics for 1948 were outlined in detail by Mrs. Robert T. Hoffman, who was the principal speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Oakland Civic Club this week at Pickwick Inn. Approximately 50 attended.

Mrs. Hoffman, former home demonstration agent, told of the new colors for spring as being navy, pink, orange, violet and bronze and said fabrics would be conservative but higher in price. The "new look" was scheduled to get closer to the ground in regard to women's dresses, with the prediction that the dress would reach within seven inches of the floor, according to the speaker.

Mrs. Homer L. Bennett was named chairman of a nominating committee to prepare for the coming election in March. A march of dimes contribution amounted to $16.80. William Ellinghaus sang several numbers, accompanied at the piano by Miss Marcella Kerins.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23—Everything good is happening to Dennis Day—pardon me, Mr. Eugene Patrick McNulty. He's found himself a beautiful bride-to-be, Peggy Almquist, whom he'll marry January 29—and he's found himself a marvelous job in the movies.

Dennis Day

Dennis, who is one of the finest imitators I know, as well as having a god-given voice, will be the star attraction in "Babes In Toyland," the old musical comedy, when it's brought to the screen by Boris Morros and William Le Baron.

Jim McGinnis, at Metro, who was on the morning Telegraph when I was, and knows the story of Jeanne Eagels, would like to make it as his first producing picture.

Of course, Casey Robinson, who is at Warners, owns the rights. Casey is calling his story "The Rain Girl."

I shouldn't be surprised if all the legal talent in America sues Harry Kurnitz when a murder mystery he has just written called "Let's Kill All the Lawyers," is brought to the screen.

How come Kurnitz, who penned the swashbuckling "Don Juan," does murder mysteries? Well, Harry, under the name of Marco Page, wrote dozens of pot boilers before he was in the money.

Just head a very heart warming story about Sol Lesser, who still has to take is very easy following his heart attack, although he's much better.

Sol heard that a ten-year-old Milwaukee boy named Tommy Kolesko, who is bedridden as the result of an automobile accident, had written asking for an authographed picture of Johnny Weissmuller.

When Sol heard that the boy has to lie flat on his back for eight months, he not only sent the autographed picture of Weissmuller, but the latest "Tarzan" film, "Tarzan and the Mermaid." He reduced it to 16 mm so Tommy could see it on the ceiling.

Chatter in Hollywood: Tyrone Power and Linda Christian are in the same boat as Lana Turner and Bob Topping. There isn't a place they can walk into without being the center of attraction.

Tyrone has solved the problem by staying out of cafes and having "the casserole" caterers bring his chicken dinners to him and the girl friend at home. Lana and Bob tried to slip into the Fox and Hounds for a quiet meal, but there was such a commotion, the management had to put them back in a far corner where they couldn't be seen.

Maureen O'Sullivan is calling her new baby Prudence Ann and she's getting a lot of opposition. Her oldest son, Michael, telephoned her at the hospital and said, "We in the nursery don't like the name Prudence." Also Maureen's Irish compatriots want Bridget.

"The '49ers," Mike Curtiz tells me, will be his big picture of next year. It is to be a history of the state of California and will celebrate the centennial of our wonderful state.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Charles Boyer has been very sick with bursitis.

Gregory Peck and his wife, Greta, leave for Nassau on February 12 on the first vacation Greg has had since he became a top star.

Marjorie Weaver is back in Hollywood and will have her baby in June. I wish Marjorie would come back to the screen.

Well, Tom Drake and Beverly Tyler who haven't been seeing each other for six months, were back together at the Somerset House.

Now I've heard everything—"Man Mountain" Dean, who is in town to play a role in "Mr. Joseph Young of Africa," has just completed a course in journalism at the University of Georgia. He gets his degree when he finishes the movie.

Ann Rutherford was with Michael Jackson and a party at Le Papillon. Marjorie Donlevy walked in with Tom Cassaro, who is very handsome. They stayed only briefly.

Diana Lynn came with Bob Neal, and over in a corner was her former boy friend, Fred Clark, with a girl who looked enough like Diana to be her twin.

Anne Baxter was with John Hodiak and her father and mother.

Keena Wynn was with Pat Walker ,and that is one of the most consistent Hollywood twosomes.

That's all today.

Gun Shot Wound Fatal To Woman

Suffering from ill health for the past six months, Mrs. Ruby H. Ryan, 42, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., a former resident of Oakland, died at Heiskell Memorial Hospital yesterday from what authorities called "self-inflicted wounds."

William Edward Ryan, husband of the victim, told police that he discovered his wife lying on a davenport about 9 a. m. yesterday with blood streaming from her face and a .22 calber rifle lying nearby.

Authorities quoted a daughter, Elaine Ryan, as saying "I think mother shot herself because of ill health." The husband declared his wife had been ill for the past six months.

The Ryans moved to Preston County, W. Va., from Oakland about six months ago, authorities declared and were residing at the home of Ryan's father, Sanford Ryan.

Besides the husband and daughter Elaine, Mrs. Ryan is survived by the following children:

Mrs. Marjorie Myers, Bruceton Mills, Albert Ryan, Franklin, W. Va., and Donald and Playford Ryan at home.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23—Everything good is happening to Dennis Day—pardon me, Mr. Eugene Patrick McNulty. He's found himself a beautiful bride-to-be, Peggy Almquist, whom he'll marry January 29—and he's found himself a marvelous job in the movies.

Dennis Day

Dennis, who is one of the finest imitators I know, as well as having a god-given voice, will be the star attraction in "Babes In Toyland," the old musical comedy, when it's brought to the screen by Boris Morros and William Le Baron.

Jim McGinnis, at Metro, who was on the morning Telegraph when I was, and knows the story of Jeanne Eagels, would like to make it as his first producing picture.

Of course, Casey Robinson, who is at Warners, owns the rights. Casey is calling his story "The Rain Girl."

I shouldn't be surprised if all the legal talent in America sues Harry Kurnitz when a murder mystery he has just written called "Let's Kill All the Lawyers," is brought to the screen.

How come Kurnitz, who penned the swashbuckling "Don Juan," does murder mysteries? Well, Harry, under the name of Marco Page, wrote dozens of pot boilers before he was in the money.

Just head a very heart warming story about Sol Lesser, who still has to take is very easy following his heart attack, although he's much better.

Sol heard that a ten-year-old Milwaukee boy named Tommy Kolesko, who is bedridden as the result of an automobile accident, had written asking for an authographed picture of Johnny Weissmuller.

When Sol heard that the boy has to lie flat on his back for eight months, he not only sent the autographed picture of Weissmuller, but the latest "Tarzan" film, "Tarzan and the Mermaid." He reduced it to 16 mm so Tommy could see it on the ceiling.

Chatter in Hollywood: Tyrone Power and Linda Christian are in the same boat as Lana Turner and Bob Topping. There isn't a place they can walk into without being the center of attraction.

Tyrone has solved the problem by staying out of cafes and having "the casserole" caterers bring his chicken dinners to him and the girl friend at home. Lana and Bob tried to slip into the Fox and Hounds for a quiet meal, but there was such a commotion, the management had to put them back in a far corner where they couldn't be seen.

Maureen O'Sullivan is calling her new baby Prudence Ann and she's getting a lot of opposition. Her oldest son, Michael, telephoned her at the hospital and said, "We in the nursery don't like the name Prudence." Also Maureen's Irish compatriots want Bridget.

"The '49ers," Mike Curtiz tells me, will be his big picture of next year. It is to be a history of the state of California and will celebrate the centennial of our wonderful state.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Charles Boyer has been very sick with bursitis.

Gregory Peck and his wife, Greta, leave for Nassau on February 12 on the first vacation Greg has had since he became a top star.

Marjorie Weaver is back in Hollywood and will have her baby in June. I wish Marjorie would come back to the screen.

Well, Tom Drake and Beverly Tyler who haven't been seeing each other for six months, were back together at the Somerset House.

Now I've heard everything—"Man Mountain" Dean, who is in town to play a role in "Mr. Joseph Young of Africa," has just completed a course in journalism at the University of Georgia. He gets his degree when he finishes the movie.

Ann Rutherford was with Michael Jackson and a party at Le Papillon. Marjorie Donlevy walked in with Tom Cassaro, who is very handsome. They stayed only briefly.

Diana Lynn came with Bob Neal, and over in a corner was her former boy friend, Fred Clark, with a girl who looked enough like Diana to be her twin.

Anne Baxter was with John Hodlak and her father and mother.

Keena Wynn was with Pat Walker and that is one of the most consistent Hollywood twosomes.

That's all today.

Gun Shot Wound Fatal To Woman

Suffering from ill health for the past six months, Mrs. Ruby H. Ryan, 42, Bruceton Mills, W. Va., a former resident of Oakland, died at Heiskell Memorial Hospital yesterday from what authorities called "self-inflicted wounds."

William Edward Ryan, husband of the victim, told police that he discovered his wife lying on a davenport about 9 a. m. yesterday with blood streaming from her face and a .22 calber rifle lying nearby.

Authorities quoted a daughter, Elaine Ryan, as saying "I think mother shot herself because of ill health." The husband declared his wife had been ill for the past six months.

The Ryans moved to Preston County, W. Va., from Oakland about six months ago, authorities declared and were residing at the home of Ryan's father, Sanford Ryan.

Besides the husband and daughter Elaine, Mrs. Ryan is survived by the following children:

Mrs. Marjorie Myers, Bruceton Mills, Albert Ryan, Franklin, W. Va., and Donald and Playford Ryan at home.

John Carradine

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—I saw John Carradine the other night, for the first time in more than a year, and all I could think of was that sooner or later all the wild beasts become tame, all the bucking broncos are gentled down, all the rugged individuals come into line. For Carradine was crossing the corner of Sixth avenue at Eighth street, with his good-looking blond young wife, Sonia Sorell—and he was pushing a baby carriage.

To those of us who remember the gaudier, more violent days of the slender John, a scene like the above is a real shock. There was a time when he was given to strutting up and down Hollywood boulevard, wearing a red-silklined Inverness cape, white tie and tails, quoting sonorously from Shakespeare.

John alternated this routine occasionally by appearing at movie premieres in a long foreign-made limousine, and all in all I guess he filled the description "character" as completely as anyone ever has.

Now, however, he is living in MacDougal Alley in Greenwich Village and acting uptown in repertory roles, and somehow it seems as if he has come home, for the Village, with its fierce-bearded poets and its assortment of weirdies, is just the habitat for John. While he was shoving the baby pram before him, the other night, it was good to note that he hadn't completely given up the ghost, for he brandished, in a very elegant manner, a cane.

A couple of seasons ago I did a magazine article on Carradine and labeled it "The Ham What Am," for surely he is the ham of all theatrical hams. It was a full-page piece and gave our boy a lot of good publicity, but if I thought it would please him, I reckoned without the sensitivity of any actor.

I meant the "ham" label affectionately, but to even breathe that word in the presence of a thespian is a libel. I met John again last winter in the lobby of the Algonquin hotel, and went up to him happily and said, "Remember me? I did a magazine piece on you."

Remember me, he did, indeed. "Yes," was all he said—and the look that went with it was enough to freeze Dante's Inferno over. I slunk out of the Algonquin, bent and old. He IS a ham, though.

For some strange reason, the only popular songs that many people like at all are haunting little tunes that never reach the hit parade because they are sad, forlorn things, and it usually takes a nice, cheerfully raucous masterpiece like "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" to ring the bell.

The thought makes me shudder. However, for those of us who like the off-center songs, the ones that never reach the top, there is only one place to hear them again and again. Pick out any night club where they have what they call a Society Dance Band—and pretty soon they all come out of the violins and saxophones.

The repertoire is almost standardized—"The Lady Is a Tramp," "You and the Night and the Music," "I Could Write a Book," "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart," "Just One of Those Things," and so on. You have heard most of them, but they never did become tremendously popular.

I was thinking of this when I ducked into the Copacabana the other night to catch the new show there, for Mike Durso's band went through the whole routine. But the most nostaglic of all came a little later, when Gertrude Niesen, the star of the floor show, came out and sang.

Miss Niesen opened up with a couple of frightening numbers which I suppose passed for jump tunes, and then suddenly the lights went dim and the fiddles squeaked a little sadly and Gertie sang the old torch ballad "Love For Sale."

That one goes AWAY back—and is the measuring-stick for those of us who go in for that business of "Hey—and do you remember this one?"

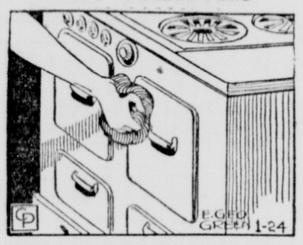

If you know "Love for Sale," you belong to the club. The words are tricky and tender, and it is too much to expect even an afficiondo to remember them, but if you can pick out the tune, you are in, son.

I'll never forget the astonishment and frank admiration that permeated my poor body and soul when John Maynard, the eminent drama critic and magazine writer, took one stiff hooker of soda, at a cocktail party, and then blandly sang "Love for Sale" through from beginning to end.

Anything that was mine—my top, my pocketknife, my marbles—was his from that day on. I was going to suggest he try "All in Fun" or "Not for All the Rice in China" next, but I decided not to press a good thing.

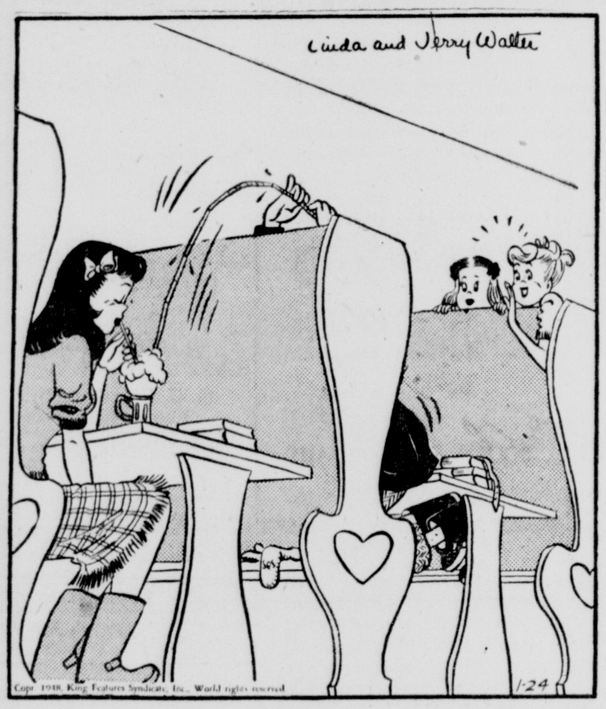

The giant crab of Japan, although only a foot across the disk, which is 18 inches long, has such long legs as occasionally to be 15 to 18 feet from tip to tip of the first pair.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

John Carradine

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—I saw John Carradine the other night, for the first time in more than a year, and all I could think of was that sooner or later all the wild beasts become tame, all the bucking broncos are gentled down, all the rugged individuals come into line. For Carradine was crossing the corner of Sixth avenue at Eighth street, with his good-looking blond young wife, Sonia Sorell—and he was pushing a baby carriage.

To those of us who remember the gaudier, more violent days of the slender John, a scene like the above is a real shock. There was a time when he was given to strutting up and down Hollywood boulevard, wearing a red-silklined Inverness cape, white tie and tails, quoting sonorously from Shakespeare,

John alternated this routine occasionally by appearing at movie premieres in a long foreign-made limousine, and all in all I guess he filled the description "character" as completely as anyone ever has.

Now, however, he is living in MacDougal Alley in Greenwich Village and acting uptown in repertory roles, and somehow it seems as if he has come home, for the Village, with its fierce-bearded poets and its assortment of weirdies, is just the habitat for John. While he was shoving the baby pram before him, the other night, it was good to note that he hadn't completely given up the ghost, for he brandished, in a very elegant manner, a cane.

A couple of seasons ago I did a magazine article on Carradine and labeled it "The Ham What Am," for surely he is the ham of all theatrical hams. It was a full-page piece and gave our boy a lot of good publicity, but if I thought it would please him, I reckoned without the sensitivity of any actor.

I meant the "ham" label affectionately, but to even breathe that word in the presence of a thespian is a libel. I met John again last winter in the lobby of the Algonquin hotel, and went up to him happily and said, "Remember me? I did a magazine piece on you."

Remember me, he did, indeed. "Yes," was all he said—and the look that went with it was enough to freeze Dante's Inferno over. I slunk out of the Algonquin, bent and old. He IS a ham, though.

For some strange reason, the only popular songs that many people like at all are haunting little tunes that never reach the hit parade because they are sad, forlorn things, and it usually takes a nice, cheerfully raucous masterpiece like "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" to ring the bell.

Miss Niesen opened up with a couple of frightening numbers which I suppose passed for jump tunes, and then suddenly the lights went dim and the fiddles squeaked a little sadly and Gertie sang the old torch ballad "Love For Sale."

That one goes AWAY back—and is the measuring-stick for those of us who go in for that business of "Hey—and do you remember this one?"

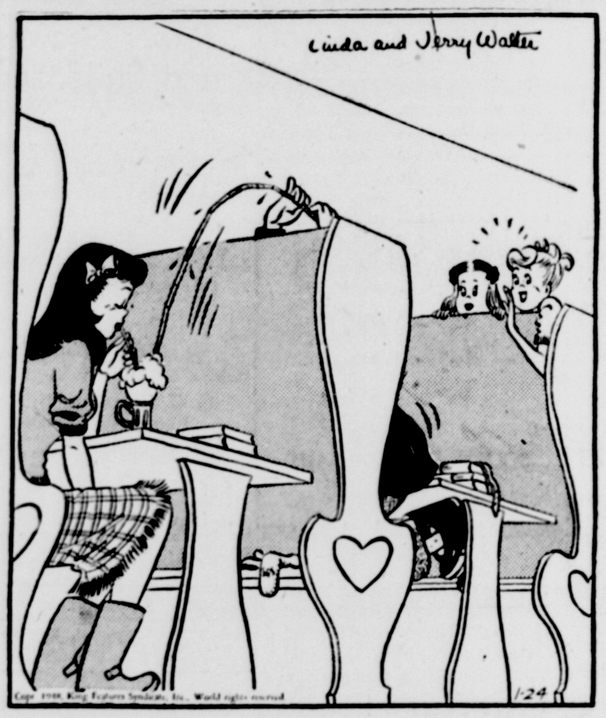

If you know "Love for Sale," you belong to the club. The words are tricky and tender, and it is too much to expect even an afficiondo to remember them, but if you can pick out the tune, you are in, son.

I'll never forget the astonishment and frank admiration that permeated my poor body and soul when John Maynard, the eminent drama critic and magazine writer, took one stiff hooker of soda, at a cocktail party, and then blandly sang "Love for Sale" through from beginning to end.

Anything that was mine—my top, my pocketknife, my marbles—was his from that day on. I was going to suggest he try "All in Fun" or "Not for All the Rice in China" next, but I decided not to press a good thing.

Selected Stocks Make Timid Passes At Recovery; AP Index Off .1 Point

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP)—Selected stocks made timid passes at recovery today although numerous market leaders remained in the losing ranks.

As in the preceding session, some rails, industrials and utilities responded moderately to further professional short covering and other bidding credited to the idea that the lengthy decline called for a technical comeback. Brokerage customers, on the whole, held aloof or trimmed commitments due to persistent pessimism regarding taxes, business, a possible new round of wage demands and disturbing foreign situations.

Dealings were quiet throughout.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at June 10. It was the sixth straight 62.5, equalling the December 5 bottom which was a low since last June 10. It was the sixth straight recession for the index. The market narrowed to 938 issues. Of these, 400 fell and 274 rose.

An uneven bond market showed selective rallying tendencies in late trading.

Fractional gains were general and there were some one point advances in the closing session. All major groups, however, had some losers.

The volume was $4,480,000, compared with $4,490,000 yesterday.

Trading was quiet in United States governments but they were steady both on the exchange and in over-the-counter dealing.

Drivers Escape Injury In Car-Truck Accident

An automobile and truck were badly damaged when they collided last night at 10:20 o'clock at the intersection of Route 40 and the Country Club road, but the drivers escaped injury, according to Maryland State Police.

Lester E. Cook, 39, employed at the Cumberland Country Club was identified as the driver of the truck, police said, and George Thomas Skrtich, 28, Annapolis, was identified as the operator of the car.

Trooper William McElfish said both cars were proceeding west on Route 40, when Cook attempted to make a left turn into the Country Club grounds. Skrtich's car collided with the rear of the truck, Trooper McElfish said.

No charges were preferred, police said, adding the accident is still being investigated.

ARMED TO RUN TODAY IN $10,000 HANDICAP

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—Calumet Farm's Armed who has made a lot of money and turf history in the longer races, goes in a seven furlong event, the $10,000 added Palm Beach Handicap, at Hialeah tomorrow against eight others including two standout sprinters, Delegate and Buzfuz.

Armed, beaten by a head in the $25,000 Gulfstream Handicap Jan. 15 by the rank outsider, Rampant, is prepping for the $50,000 Widener to be run at Hialeah Feb. 21 when he is scheduled to meet King Ranch's Assault and any others who care to go along.

The seven-year-old gelding favors the mile and a quarter race to the shorter sprint affairs, and he may find Delegate and Buzfuz ready to give him considerable trouble over the seven furlong route.

Woman Dies After Being Struck By Basketball

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Eli Knight, 63, died in a hospital last night of a blood clot which developed after she was struck in the head by a basketball while watching the preliminaries of a game at Darlington, Md.

She suffered the injury at the Darlington High School Monday night and was brought to the hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Mountaineers Battle Bethany Five Tonight

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—Off for 10 days but a bit worn after wrestling with semester finals, the Mountaineers of West Virginia University return to action tomorrow below full strength to shoot it out with Bethany College at the field house. The game will be the first at home for Coach Lee Patton's cagers since January 3 when they mauled Washington and Lee, 78-35.

The Mountaineers will be without the services of their ace pointmaker, Fred Schaus, whose sprained ankle is being rested. In his place Eddie Sidaris is a likely starter.

Despite the absence of Schaus, West Virginia is figured to have a comparatively easy time of it with Bethany. The Bisons dropped six of their first nine games and on paper are not in the class of the 6-2 Mountaineers, although they will exhibit the district's leading scorer in Jim Mewhirter, rangy forward of Avalon, Pa.

Bromwich And Quist Will Play For Title

MELBOURNE, Jan. 23 (AP)—John Bromwich and Adrian Quist, a pair of Australian tennis veterans, will meet each other again tomorrow with the country's singles title at stake.

Bromwich subdued Geoff Brown, a Davis Cup spare last year, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5, in one semifinal today while Quist eliminated Billy Sidwell, 6-1, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3 in the other.

Bob Hannegan Decides On Hush-Hush Policy

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23 — (AP) — Bob Hannegan, the St. Louis Cardinals' new president, changed a front office policy today and said he would withhold announcements of signing of 1948 contracts by players until the opening of spring training March 1.

The hush-hush policy came after the Cardinal office already had made public the signing of six Redbirds including Terry Moore, Joe Garagiola, and Red Schoendienst.

Hannegan's most recent conferences have been with Whitey Kurowski and Stan Musial, neither of whom has signed.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In the matter of George Wilbur Barnstricker Ex Parte. No. 20463 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object and purpose of the Bill of Complaint in the above entitled proceedings is to secure a finding of the disappearance or death of George Wilbur Barnstricker and the appointment of a receiver to take charge of his property if this is found to be necessary and to provide for the transfer of the record of these proceedings to the Orphans Court for Allegany County, Maryland for administration of the estate of the said George Wilbur Barnstricker in the event that the Court shall return a finding of death of the said George Wilbur Barnstricker.

The Bill of Complaint states that George B. Barnstricker, William A. Barnstricker, Jessie F. Barnstricker and Florence Jenkins are the children and only heirs at law of George Wilbur Barnstricker, who completely disappeared from view and was last heard of in 1922 while domiciled in Maryland, and although diligent inquiry has been made, the said George Wilbur Barnstricker cannot be found.

That the only asset of George Wilbur Barnstricker is an account in the Carrollton Bank, Baltimore, Maryland subject to the order of the Orphans Court of Baltimore City, in the amount of $314.02 representing the distributive share of George Wilbur Barnstricker in the estate of Senny Barnstricker, together with the interest thereon to date.

It is thereupon this 2nd day of January, 1948, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the complainants cause a copy of this Order with the object and substance of the Petition to be inserted in some daily newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland once a week for four successive weeks before the 31st day of January, 1948, giving notice to George Wilbur Barnstricker or to whom it may concern to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 7th day of February, 1948, the date set for the hearing in this case at 10:00 A. M. o'clock to show cause, if any, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Vivian C. Taylor vs. Bedford R. Taylor. No. 20479 Equity in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree of divorce divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII. The bill states that the parties were married at West Union, W. Va. on February 25, 1943; that two children were born of the marriage, William R., four years old, and Sondra E., two years old, whose custody the plaintiff seeks; that the defendant deserted the plaintiff on November 26, 1945, without just cause or reason, and that said desertion has been continous and uninterrupted since said date, is deliberate and final and beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation; that the plaintiff has resided in Allegany County for more than one year next before the filing of this suit, and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and his present address and whereabouts unknown to the plaintiff.

It is thereupon this 8th day of January, 1948, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, in Equity, ordered that the plaintiff by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for four successive weeks before the 9th day of February, 1948, give notice to the non-resident defendant of the object and substance of this suit, warning him to be and appear in this court in person or by solicitor on or before the 25th day of February, 1948, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Selected Stocks Make Timid Passes At Recovery; AP Index Off .1 Point

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP)—Selected stocks made timid passes at recovery today although numerous market leaders remained in the losing ranks.

As in the preceding session, some rails, industrials and utilities responded moderately to further professional short covering and other bidding credited to the idea that the lengthy decline called for a technical comeback. Brokerage customers, on the whole, held aloof or trimmed commitments due to persistent pessimism regarding taxes, business, a possible new round of wage demands and disturbing foreign situations.

Dealings were quiet throughout.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at June 10. It was the sixth straight 62.5, equalling the December 5 bottom which was a low since last June 10. It was the sixth straight recession for the index. The market narrowed to 938 issues. Of these, 400 fell and 274 rose.

An uneven bond market showed selective rallying tendencies in late trading.

Fractional gains were general and there were some one point advances in the closing session. All major groups, however, had some losers.

The volume was $4,480,000, compared with $4,490,000 yesterday.

Trading was quiet in United States governments but they were steady both on the exchange and in over-the-counter dealing.

No charges were preferred, police said, adding the accident is still being investigated.

Mountaineers Battle Bethany Five Tonight

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—Off for 10 days but a bit worn after wrestling with semester finals, the Mountaineers of West Virginia University return to action tomorrow below full strength to shoot it out with Bethany College at the field house. The game will be the first at home for Coach Lee Patton's cagers since January 3 when they mauled Washington and Lee, 78-35.

The Mountaineers will be without the services of their ace pointmaker, Fred Schaus, whose sprained ankle is being rested. In his place Eddie Sidaris is a likely starter.

Despite the absence of Schaus, West Virginia is figured to have a comparatively easy time of it with Bethany. The Bisons dropped six of their first nine games and on paper are not in the class of the 6-2 Mountaineers, although they will exhibit the district's leading scorer in Jim Mewhirter, rangy forward of Avalon, Pa.

The object and purpose of the Bill of Complaint in the above entitled proceedings is to secure a finding of the disappearance or death of George Wilbur Barnstricker and the appointment of a receiver to take charge of his property if this is found to be necessary and to provide for the transfer of the record of these proceedings to the Orphans Court for Allegany County, Maryland for administration of the estate of the said George Wilbur Barnstricker in the event that the Court shall return a finding of death of the said George Wilbur Barnstricker.

The Bill of Complaint states that George B. Barnstricker, William A. Barnstricker, Jessie F. Barnstricker and Florence Jenkins are the children and only heirs at law of George Wilbur Barnstricker, who completely disappeared from view and was last heard of in 1922 while domiciled in Maryland, and although diligent inquiry has been made, the said George Wilbur Barnstricker cannot be found.

That the only asset of George Wilbur Barnstricker is an account in the Carrollton Bank, Baltimore, Maryland subject to the order of the Orphans Court of Baltimore City, in the amount of $314.02 representing the distributive share of George Wilbur Barnstricker in the estate of Senny Barnstricker, together with the interest thereon to date.

It is thereupon this 2nd day of January, 1948, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the complainants cause a copy of this Order with the object and substance of the Petition to be inserted in some daily newspaper published in the City of Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland once a week for four successive weeks before the 31st day of January, 1948, giving notice to George Wilbur Barnstricker or to whom it may concern to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 7th day of February, 1948, the date set for the hearing in this case at 10:00 A. M. o'clock to show cause, if any, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

"Your Times-News Want Ad said Daily Diaries—do you have them for nights, too?"

Rep. Beall Outlines Bill On Universal Training

Says Nation Needs Strong Army, Navy

"The State Department can negotiate all it wants to, but unless it is backed up by a strong Army and Navy, we are lost," Rep. J. Glenn Beall, (R-Md) told members and guests at a dinner meeting of the Reserve Officers Association at Ali Ghan Country Club last night.

Speaking on veterans' legislation already enacted by Congress, and explaining bills now in committee and being proposed, Rep. Beall said the most controversial measure, intended to deal with the nation's ability to meet emergencies, is that of Universal Military Training.

In considering a measure of this kind, Rep. Beall expressed the view that three factors are paramount: first, the welfare of the country; second, the welfare of the young men of the country; and third, the cost of the program.

"The future of the bill is impossible to predict," the Congressman continued. He did venture the opinion, however, that if the measure comes to a vote in the House at this session of Congress, the vote will be close. He based his prediction on the fact that the bill was reported out of committee by the scant margin of 11 to nine.

To Provide For Defense

Outlining the present UMT measure, Rep. Beall said the purpose of the bill is "to provide for the common defense by requiring all young men between the ages of 18 and 20 to undergo a period of training which will fit them to contribute to the protection of the country in time of emergency."

Under the measure, he continued, "young men liable for training, although they shall be legally deemed to have military status, shall NOT be members of the armed forces, shall be subject to no duty other than training, and shall be liable to bear arms for the United States ONLY in the event of a national emergency so declared by Congress and the President, and by enactment of a new conscription law.

"They shall NOT be subject to the Articles of War, nor to the Articles for the Government of the Navy, but to a special disciplinary code contained in Title II, Chapter III of the bill."

Six Months Training

Rep. Beall explained that under the present bill, known as H. R. 4278, all qualified young men would undergo six months' basic training to be followed by advanced training in one of 10 "alternative programs" provided. These alternatives include the National Guard, college ROTC, enlistment in the Regular armed forces, and entrance into one of the service academies.

"The training provided hereunder," Rep. Beall explained, "thus takes a young man from his home community for a period of only six months, unless he chooses to enter Regular service or one of the academies.

"The training program," he continued, "is highly flexible, and guarantees a large area of civilian control. The entire program would be administered by a commission of three who would report directly to the President. Two members of this commission, including the chairman, would be civilians and the third a member of the armed forces."

Training Time Reduced

Rep. Beall reminded his listeners that when UMT was first proposed, a full year of training was a basic part of the program. Now this has been reduced to six months, and he suggested that before the bill reaches its final form, it might even be reduced to four months.

Under the old bill, the trainees would have been a part of the United States Army, but under the new bill they are not. They are a part of a new plan, controlled by a commission, two-thirds civilian, responsible to the President, he reiterated.

Following his address on the legislation, an open forum was held with a number of the 59 members and guests present asking questions and commenting on UMT.

Walsh Favors Adoption

William C. Walsh, local attorney, veteran of World War I, and former judge and attorney general, spoke at length on the UMT question.

Walsh declared, "In this day and age, Universal Military Training has become a necessity, whether we like it or not." He urged the Reserve Officers to conduct an educational campaign to acquaint the public generally with the contents of the UMT bill, and to urge them to write their Congressmen and express their opinion on it.

There are many groups opposing the measure and many who do not want it to become law, Walsh said. "I have an idea the Communists are opposed to it," the former jurist exclaimed. He said, "In its present form I believe it is an entirely innocuous bill."

Rep. Beall was introduced by Charles S. Catherman, Jr., program chairman, and Thomas B. Finan, Jr., introduced guests present including Associate Judge George Henderson, Dr. Richard Williams, Walsh, Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland, Capt. Thomas Stafford, and Col. Coulter, Second Army instructor of Baltimore.

Dr. Wiley M. Faw, Jr., president of the Association, presided at the dinner meeting.

New Lights Planned For Circuit Court

Plans are being considered for modernizing the lighting in the Circuit Court room at Allegany County Court House, it was disclosed yesterday following a conference between Chief Judge William A. Huster, Associate Judge George Henderson, and Clerk of Court Robert Jackson.

The Court room is now lighted by two large round chandeliers suspended from the ceiling with ordinary light bulbs set in a circle. The lamps cause considerable glare and do not properly illuminate the huge, high-ceilinged room. Judges, attorneys, clerks and attaches have frequently complained about the poor lighting.

It is hoped to have modern lighting equipment installed by competent lighting personnel at an early date, officials said.

4 Newark Holdup Suspects Held On $9,000 Bond

Girl Will Get Hearing Today

Four Newark, N. J., men, who confessed to participating or aiding in an attempted armed robbery at the A. and P. Super Market here Jan. 12, waived preliminary hearings yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court and were committed to the Allegany County jail in default of bonds aggregating $9,000.

The four men, who were arrested three hours after the attempted holdup along with a 17-year-old girl, signed confessions, police said, admitting that they came to Cumberland with the robbery planned.

Joseph Cunha, 22, who authorities identified as one of the participants, was ordered held on $3,000 bond while his accomplices, James J. Minnellia, 21, Daniel D'Wulit, 24, and Gabriel Cunha, 24, charged with being accessories to the crime, were ordered held on $2,000 bond each.

The girl, Ellen "Honey" Sona, described as a cafe dancer, will be arraigned in Juvenile Court this morning on delinquent minor charges, authorities indicated.

Acting County Investigator Harry Holsinger had separate warrants sworn out for the four men before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew and named Edward Pavlisko, now being held in Newark, N. J., as the second participant in the attempted holdup. Pavlisko was previously identified by Joseph Cunha as the man who struck Rosco M. McElfish over the head in the attempted robbery.

Three of the four men, who on Thursday appeared in People's Court to charge two Newark detectives, with assault and battery, indicated that they would be unable to furnish bond and were returned to Jail.

Authorities did not indicate if they would attempt to extradite Pavlisko from New Jersey to answer charges here for his part in the attempted armed robbery. The Cunha brothers and Minnellia were questioned here a week ago by Detectives Robert Griffith and Robert Donnelly, Newark, concerning four holdups in the Newark area.

Both detectives were acquitted on assault charges Wednesday which resulted from complaints of the three prisoners that they were abused during the questioning.

The quintet was arrested near Burlington, W. Va., by Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn and Lt. Detective Edwin R. Lilya but Pavlisko, and two others of the gang, identified as Rolland Snyder and Joseph Weslie Mills, escaped.

The trio was later arrested in Newark and the two detectives while here indicated that at least one of the men may be able to furnish information concerning an attempted bank robbery at the Second National Bank here Dec. 21.

Five persons were killed and another 62 injured, many of them seriously, in the 65 motor vehicle accidents investigated by the Romney detachment of the West Virginia State Police during 1947. Property damage resulting from the accidents totaled $15,380.

Warning tickets were issued to 724 motorists by the state troopers during the year by the Department of Public Safety, according to the annual report of the detachment.

Road law violations resulted in 174 arrests while miscellaneous misdemeanors accounted for another 72 arrests and 13 felonies for a total of 383 arrests.

The 18 felonies investigated by W. Va., State Police in Hampshire County resulted in property stolen to the value of $6,589.85, but $4,914 of that amount was recovered, reducing the loss to $1,675.85.

The four stolen automobiles recovered during the period were valued at $4,600.

Operators licenses of 62 motorists were revoked by the detachment during the 12-month-period.

Examinations for operators licenses were given by the troopers to 393 persons, with passing marks given to 337. Another 56 applicants failed to pass the tests and were refused licenses.

County Board To Re-Advertise For Heavy Duty Trucks

Favor Broader Social Benefits

Allegany County Commissioners yesterday rejected several bids on heavy duty trucks because it was agreed that a change should be made in certain specifications. Bids on trucks will be readvertised, according to members of the Board.

Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the County Board, said new heavy-duty trucks are needed to use in road repair and building work, and also for snow removal. Most of the trucks now owned by the county have proved too light for the work.

County Commissioners yesterday were also in agreement on a question of supporting a nationwide movement among county boards and similar governing groups, to have county employes included in Social Security Benefit coverage and also to urge federal aid in county road building and maintenance.

Wilkinson said Commissioner William H. Lemmert, Frostburg, and Commissioner James Holmes, Lonaconing, agreed with him, that the local County Board should join the National Association of County Officials, sponsors of these two programs.

Action to join the national association followed the reading of a letter from Keith L. Seegmiller, Washington, representative of the group.

Seegmiller explained that a three-year program of federal aid for secondary roads is about to expire and with its expiration one of the most valuable benefits flowing from the federal government will cease. The program called for a matching of county and federal funds on road expenditures.

The letter stated the association is endeavoring to have the program renewed and said the voice of the local board will be made heard along with the rest.

Seegmiller said the association is continuing to wage its fight to have Social Security laws amended and much progress has been made. The amendment calls for including county employes in the benefits of the measure, and the association's bill is now in both houses of Congress with good chance of passage, the letter says.

Wilkinson said there are about 200 county employes not covered by Social Security, and the local Board firmly believes the benefits should be extended to include governmental employes of the counties and cities.

The lad was identified by city police here as Lester Gray, son of Mrs. Helen Gray, McCoole. The hospital said his condition was "satisfactory" late last night.

Temperature Dips To 12 Below In Tri-State Area

Seven Registered Here At 10:30 P.M.

Temperature as low as 12 degrees below zero was reported at 10 o'clock last night after a new cold wave embraced the Tri-State area, and the Weather Bureau predicted the worst is "yet to come."

The Bureau, which expects this morning to bring the coldest weather of the winter to Maryland, said the frigid weather may hang over the state for the next two or three days.

Garrett, Pa., gave the coldest report last night of 12 below zero, and at Grantsville the temperature had dipped to 10 below. Crellin, four miles from Oakland in Garrett County, reported five below, and at Oakland at 5 p. m. the mercury registered five above.

In Cumberland, the official thermometer in Constitution Park, recorded seven degrees at 10:30 p. m., and the Western Maryland Railway dispatcher reported the mercury at eight above on the Potomac River side of his office half an hour earlier. He said it had been steady at that point from 8 to 10 p. m.

Zero temperatures were reported at Deal, Pa., and Thomas and Terra Alta, W. Va., but at Deal the mercury had not dropped since 6 p. m.

At Thomas, however, the temperature dropped from seven above at 6 p. m. to zero at 10 o'clock.

These were other 10 p. m. readings in the Tri-State area:

Altamont, two above; Blaser, W. Va., six above, and Hardman, W. Va., 12 above.

The arrival of the predicted cold wave was readily felt yesterday in Cumberland where the maximum temperature for the day was only 19 above zero and only four above the overnight low of 14.

From Garrett County came the same story, with Oakland having a low of six degrees yesterday and the temperature failing to rise to any extent.

One inch of new snow fell in Garrett County overnight yesterday to raise the total on the ground to seven inches. However, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Roads Commission, said all roads have been kept clear by 10 trucks operating in Garrett and three in the Frostburg area. Chains were not recommended.

Prospects for skiing continued good yesterday in the New Germany Recreation Area of Garrett County, according to Edward B. Ballard, assistant director of the Department of Forests and Parks.

He said snow on the ski trails was two to five inches deep and on the slopes five to eight inches. This included a new fluffy snow of two to three inches.

While the Weather Bureau expects a slight rise in temperature today, it also predicts more snow.

Dances Planned For Polio Drive

Five dances for the benefit of the Infantile Paralysis Campaign, are scheduled for Allegany County, John M. Robb campaign chairman announced yesterday.

Robb said a dance under the joint sponsorship of the Cumberland - Frostburg committees scheduled for January 30 at the Clary Club will probably top the list.

Mrs. W. O. McLane, Frostburg campaign chairman, announced that the club was donated free of charge by Joseph Lyons, proprietor. The Frostburg Elks Lodge, No. 470, is making arrangements.

A dance will be held in the Goodwill Fire Hall, Lonaconing, Monday night, another Tuesday night in the Barton Fire Hall, and a third at Jack's Place, in Westernport, Wednesday night.

Companies C. and D., local National Guard units, have also scheduled a dance for Saturday night, January 31, in the Armory, South Centre Street.

With a week gone by in the drive for funds to combat infantile paralysis, Robb announced yesterday that early collections have been very good.

Contributions at two local sport events totaled $142 and Mrs. Opie Annan, executive secretary of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, reports that $100 in small donations were received at League headquarters.

Forty dimes deposited in parking meters in Cumberland were collected Sunday. However, according to officials, the result is not disappointing from this source as the public was not well informed of the service.

Collections are being taken in all county schools and 2,505 coin containers were distributed to business places with 50 of the number placed in downtown Cumberland.

Temperature Reading

Ice skaters, if they are rugged enough to stand the frigid weather, will have plenty of opportunity today to try their skill, the weatherman predicting more cold weather and not expecting the temperature to rise above freezing. Yesterday's maximum temperature was 19, only five above the overnight low of 14. At 10:30 p. m. it was seven.

Rep. Beall Outlines Bill On Universal Training

Says Nation Needs Strong Army, Navy

"The State Department can negotiate all it wants to, but unless it is backed up by a strong Army and Navy, we are lost," Rep. J. Glenn Beall, (R-Md) told members and guests at a dinner meeting of the Reserve Officers Association at All Ghan Country Club last night.

Speaking on veterans' legislation already enacted by Congress, and explaining bills now in committee and being proposed, Rep. Beall said the most controversial measure, intended to deal with the nation's ability to meet emergencies, is that of Universal Military Training.

In considering a measure of this kind, Rep. Beall expressed the view that three factors are paramount: first, the welfare of the country; second, the welfare of the young men of the country; and third, the cost of the program.

"The future of the bill is impossible to predict," the Congressman continued. He did venture the opinion, however, that if the measure comes to a vote in the House at this session of Congress, the vote will be close. He based his prediction on the fact that the bill was reported out of committee by the scant margin of 11 to nine.

To Provide For Defense

Outlining the present UMT measure, Rep. Beall said the purpose of the bill is "to provide for the common defense by requiring all young men between the ages of 18 and 20 to undergo a period of training which will fit them to contribute to the protection of the country in time of emergency."

Under the measure, he continued, "young men liable for training, although they shall be legally deemed to have military status, shall NOT be members of the armed forces, shall be subject to no duty other than training, and shall be liable to bear arms for the United States ONLY in the event of a national emergency so declared by Congress and the President, and by enactment of a new conscription law.

"They shall NOT be subject to the Articles of War, nor to the Articles for the Government of the Navy, but to a special disciplinary code contained in Title II, Chapter III of the bill."

Six Months Training

Rep. Beall explained that under the present bill, known as H. R. 4278, all qualified young men would undergo six months' basic training to be followed by advanced training in one of 10 "alternative programs" provided. These alternatives include the National Guard, college ROTC, enlistment in the Regular armed forces, and entrance into one of the service academies.

"The training provided hereunder," Rep. Beall explained, "thus takes a young man from his home community for a period of only six months, unless he chooses to enter Regular service or one of the academies.

"The training program," he continued, "is highly flexible, and guarantees a large area of civilian control. The entire program would be administered by a commission of three who would report directly to the President. Two members of this commission, including the chairman, would be civilians and the third a member of the armed forces."

Training Time Reduced

Rep. Beall reminded his listeners that when UMT was first proposed, a full year of training was a basic part of the program. Now this has been reduced to six months, and he suggested that before the bill reaches its final form, it might even be reduced to four months.

Under the old bill, the trainees would have been a part of the United States Army, but under the new bill they are not. They are a part of a new plan, controlled by a commission, two-thirds civilian, responsible to the President, he reiterated.

Following his address on the legislation, an open forum was held with a number of the 59 members and guests present asking questions and commenting on UMT.

Walsh Favors Adoption

William C. Walsh, local attorney, veteran of World War I, and former judge and attorney general, spoke at length on the UMT question.

Walsh declared, "In this day and age, Universal Military Training has become a necessity, whether we like it or not." He urged the Reserve Officers to conduct an educational campaign to acquaint the public generally with the contents of the UMT bill, and to urge them to write their Congressmen and express their opinion on it.

There are many groups opposing the measure and many who do not want it to become law, Walsh said. "I have an idea the Communists are opposed to it," the former jurist exclaimed. He said, "In its present form I believe it is an entirely innocuous bill."

Rep. Beall was introduced by Charles S. Catherman, Jr., program chairman, and Thomas B. Finan, Jr., introduced guests present including Associate Judge George Henderson, Dr. Richard Williams, Walsh, Lt. Col. Randolph Millholland, Capt. Thomas Stafford, and Col. Coulter, Second Army instructor of Baltimore.

Dr. Wiley M. Faw, Jr., president of the Association, presided at the dinner meeting.

New Lights Planned For Circuit Court

Plans are being considered for modernizing the lighting in the Circuit Court room at Allegany County Court House, it was disclosed yesterday following a conference between Chief Judge William A. Huster, Associate Judge George Henderson, and Clerk of Court Robert Jackson.

The Court room is now lighted by two large round chandeliers suspended from the ceiling with ordinary light bulbs set in a circle. The lamps cause considerable glare and do not properly illuminate the huge, high-ceilinged room. Judges, attorneys, clerks and attaches have frequently complained about the poor lighting.

It is hoped to have modern lighting equipment installed by competent lighting personnel at an early date, officials said.

Girl Will Get Hearing Today

Four Newark, N. J., men, who confessed to participating or aiding in an attempted armed robbery at the A. and P. Super Market here Jan. 12, waived preliminary hearings yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court and were committed to the Allegany County jail in default of bonds aggregating $9,000.

The four men, who were arrested three hours after the attempted holdup along with a 17-year-old girl, signed confessions, police said, admitting that they came to Cumberland with the robbery planned.

Joseph Cunha, 22, who authorities identified as one of the participants, was ordered held on $3,000 bond while his accomplices, James J. Minnellia, 21, Daniel D'Wulit, 24, and Gabriel Cunha, 24, charged with being accessories to the crime, were ordered held on $2,000 bond each.

The girl, Ellen "Honey" Sona, described as a cafe dancer, will be arraigned in Juvenile Court this morning on delinquent minor charges, authorities indicated.

Acting County Investigator Harry Holsinger had separate warrants sworn out for the four men before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew and named Edward Pavlisko, now being held in Newark, N. J., as the second participant in the attempted holdup. Pavlisko was previously identified by Joseph Cunha as the man who struck Rosco M. McElfish over the head in the attempted robbery.

Three of the four men, who on Thursday appeared in People's Court to charge two Newark detectives, with assault and battery, indicated that they would be unable to furnish bond and were returned to Jail.

Authorities did not indicate if they would attempt to extradite Pavlisko from New Jersey to answer charges here for his part in the attempted armed robbery. The Cunha brothers and Minnellia were questioned here a week ago by Detectives Robert Griffith and Robert Donnelly, Newark, concerning four holdups in the Newark area.

Both detectives were acquitted on assault charges Wednesday which resulted from complaints of the three prisoners that they were abused during the questioning.

The quintet was arrested near Burlington, W. Va., by Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn and Lt. Detective Edwin R. Lilya but Pavlisko, and two others of the gang, identified as Rolland Snyder and Joseph Weslie Mills, escaped.

The trio was later arrested in Newark and the two detectives while here indicated that at least one of the men may be able to furnish information concerning an attempted bank robbery at the Second National Bank here Dec. 21.

Five Persons Killed, 62 Injured In Hampshire Car Crashes In 1947

Five persons were killed and another 62 injured, many of them seriously, in the 65 motor vehicle accidents investigated by the Romney detachment of the West Virginia State Police during 1947. Property damage resulting from the accidents totaled $15,380.

Warning tickets were issued to 724 motorists by the state troopers during the year by the Department of Public Safety, according to the annual report of the detachment.

Road law violations resulted in 174 arrests while miscellaneous misdemeanors accounted for another 72 arrests and 13 felonies for a total of 383 arrests.

The 18 felonies investigated by W. Va., State Police in Hampshire County resulted in property stolen to the value of $6,589.85, but $4,914 of that amount was recovered, reducing the loss to $1,675.85.

The four stolen automobiles recovered during the period were valued at $4,600.

Charges of drunken driving resulted in the conviction of 17 motorists on the charge.

Operators licenses of 62 motorists were revoked by the detachment during the 12-month-period.

Examinations for operators licenses were given by the troopers to 393 persons, with passing marks given to 337. Another 56 applicants failed to pass the tests and were refused licenses.

County Board To Re-Advertise For Heavy Duty Trucks

Favor Broader Social Benefits

Allegany County Commissioners yesterday rejected several bids on heavy duty trucks because it was agreed that a change should be made in certain specifications. Bids on trucks will be readvertised, according to members of the Board.

Charles N. Wilkinson, Jr., president of the County Board, said new heavy-duty trucks are needed to use in road repair and building work, and also for snow removal. Most of the trucks now owned by the county have proved too light for the work.

County Commissioners yesterday were also in agreement on a question of supporting a nationwide movement among county boards and similar governing groups, to have county employes included in Social Security Benefit coverage and also to urge federal aid in county road building and maintenance.

Wilkinson said Commissioner William H. Lemmert, Frostburg, and Commissioner James Holmes, Lonaconing, agreed with him, that the local County Board should join the National Association of County Officials, sponsors of these two programs.

Action to join the national association followed the reading of a letter from Keith L. Seegmiller, Washington, representative of the group.

Seegmiller explained that a three-year program of federal aid for secondary roads is about to expire and with its expiration one of the most valuable benefits flowing from the federal government will cease. The program called for a matching of county and federal funds on road expenditures.

The letter stated the association is endeavoring to have the program renewed and said the voice of the local board will be made heard along with the rest.

Seegmiller said the association is continuing to wage its fight to have Social Security laws amended and much progress has been made. The amendment calls for including county employes in the benefits of the measure, and the association's bill is now in both houses of Congress with good chance of passage, the letter says.

Wilkinson said there are about 200 county employes not covered by Social Security, and the local Board firmly believes the benefits should be extended to include governmental employes of the counties and cities.

By JUNE B. ROLLEY

KEYSER—A 15-year-old McCoole youth collapsed on Main Street here late yesterday afternoon of exhaustion as he was running toward Potomac Valley Hospital for treatment of an accidentally inflicted gunshot wound of the right shoulder.

The lad was identified by city police here as Lester Gray, son of Mrs. Helen Gray, McCoole. The hospital said his condition was "satisfactory" late last night.

City police said the lad was picked up 5:55 p. m. on Main Street here where he had fallen from exhaustion, suffering from a .22 caliber rifle wound in the right shoulder.

Gray told Keyser authorities he ran all the way from his home in McCoole in an attempt to reach the hospital after he accidentally shot himself.

Temperature Dips To 12 Below In Tri-State Area

Seven Registered Here At 10:30 P.M.

Temperature as low as 12 degrees below zero was reported at 10 o'clock last night after a new cold wave embraced the Tri-State area, and the Weather Bureau predicted the worst is "yet to come."

The Bureau, which expects this morning to bring the coldest weather of the winter to Maryland, said the frigid weather may hang over the state for the next two or three days.

Garrett, Pa., gave the coldest report last night of 12 below zero, and at Grantsville the temperature had dipped to 10 below. Crellin, four miles from Oakland in Garrett County, reported five below, and at Oakland at 5 p. m. the mercury registered five above.

In Cumberland, the official thermometer in Constitution Park, recorded seven degrees at 10:30 p. m., and the Western Maryland Railway dispatcher reported the mercury at eight above on the Potomac River side of his office half an hour earlier. He said it had been steady at that point from 8 to 10 p. m.

Zero temperatures were reported at Deal, Pa., and Thomas and Terra Alta, W. Va., but at Deal the mercury had not dropped since 6 p. m.

At Thomas, however, the temperature dropped from seven above at 6 p. m. to zero at 10 o'clock.

These were other 10 p. m. readings in the Tri-State area:

Altamont, two above; Blaser, W. Va., six above, and Hardman, W. Va., 12 above.

The arrival of the predicted cold wave was readily felt yesterday in Cumberland where the maximum temperature for the day was only 19 above zero and only four above the overnight low of 14.

From Garrett County came the same story, with Oakland having a low of six degrees yesterday and the temperature failing to rise to any extent.

One inch of new snow fell in Garrett County overnight yesterday fo raise the total on the ground to seven inches. However, G. Bates Chaires, district engineer of the State Roads Commission, said all roads have been kept clear by 10 trucks operating in Garrett and three in the Frostburg area. Chains were not recommended.

Prospects for skiing continued good yesterday in the New Germany Recreation Area of Garrett County, according to Edward B. Ballard, assistant director of the Department of Forests and Parks.

He said snow on the ski trails was two to five inches deep and on the slopes five to eight inches. This included a new fluffy snow of two to three inches.

While the Weather Bureau expects a slight rise in temperature today, it also predicts more snow.

Dances Planned For Polio Drive

Five dances for the benefit of the Infantile Paralysis Campaign, are scheduled for Allegany County, John M. Robb campaign chairman announced yesterday.

Robb said a dance under the joint sponsorship of the Cumberland - Frostburg committees scheduled for January 30 at the Clary Club will probably top the list.

Mrs. W. O. McLane, Frostburg campaign chairman, announced that the club was donated free of charge by Joseph Lyons, proprietor. The Frostburg Elks Lodge, No. 470, is making arrangements.

A dance will be held in the Goodwill Fire Hall, Lonaconing, Monday night, another Tuesday night in the Barton Fire Hall, and a third at Jack's Place, in Westernport, Wednesday night.

Companies C. and D., local National Guard units, have also scheduled a dance for Saturday night, January 31, in the Armory, South Centre Street.

With a week gone by in the drive for funds to combat infantile paralysis, Robb announced yesterday that early collections have been very good.

Contributions at two local sport events totaled $142 and Mrs. Opie Annan, executive secretary of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, reports that $100 in small donations were received at League headquarters.

Forty dimes deposited in parking meters in Cumberland were collected Sunday. However, according to officials, the result is not disappointing from this source as the public was not well informed of the service.

Collections are being taken in all county schools and 2,505 coin containers were distributed to business places with 50 of the number placed in downtown Cumberland.

Temperature Reading

Ice skaters, if they are rugged enough to stand the frigid weather, will have plenty of opportunity today to try their skill, the weatherman predicting more cold weather and not expecting the temperature to rise above freezing. Yesterday's maximum temperature was 19, only five above the overnight low of 14. At 10:30 p. m. it was seven.
